Gamblers of Area Facing Jury Probe

assistant U. S. Attorneys, Roger Robb and Sam Beach, they worked for a year investigating gambling, resulting in indictments of a large number of persons, including several Metropolitan policemen.

The policemen, charged with conspiracy to violate the gambling laws, were not convicted because of the ruling against the admission of evidence obtained by wiretapping, but several gamblers went to jail.

Inspector Truscott, asked yesterday if he believes there is still organized gambling in the District, said:

"Yes, there is organized gambling in the District of Columbia, to the best of my information.

"By that I mean that the way the number game operates today, the player gives his money and number to a writer, the writer in turn gives the number and money to a pick-up man, who in turn gives the money and number to a backer, which in turn leads to sources both within and without the District."

Truscott said Lieut. Roy Blick, head of the vice squad, "has been in constant touch with the United States Attorney for the las 10 days."

Asked to comment on the grand jury call yesterday, Ralph W. Brown, superintendent of Prince Georges County Police, declared:

"As far as we know there is nothing in this country. If there is we want to know it."

In mid-September, Chief Brown announced he was cracking down on all known gamblers in Prince Georges County, stating, "There is too much gambling going on and the time has come to stop it."

That crackdown closed down the elaborate gambling dens in the county, well-known to thousands of District residents. While there were some reports that the big gamblers close dtheir places until the situation "cools off," there are other reports that some operators moved into other Maryland counties.

Chief Justice Charles W. Woodward of Montgomery County Circuit Court, who has a reputation for handing out stiff sentences to gamblers, said, "if there is going to be an investigation into gambling I'm delighted to hear it."

States Attorney Walter W. Dawson of Montgomery County and County Police Chief Charles M. Orme both said there is no major gambling in the county.

Orme said, "I believe a majority of the numbers taken in Montgomery County are turned in in some other jurisdiction," while Dawson declared that gamblers for years have avoided the county because of sereve penalties.

In Arlington, Commonwealth's Attorney Denman T. Rucker said that in 99 of 100 cases prosecuted the "runners" who collect the number bets say the money is turned over to someone in Washington.

Daniel A. Dugan, chairman of Arlington's County Board, who started a gambling investigation in Arlington last April which failed to produce sufficient evidence for action, also said Washington police might well examine the District itself.

Said Dugan, "I'd suggest they take a look at Georgetown—particularly in the "Foggy Bottom" section—and also on Canal road between Key Bridge and Chain Bridge."

Similar views of, "it's not us," came from Detective Lieut. Russell A. Hawes of Alexandria, who said, "Gambling in Alexandria is confined to small time numbers men and bookies. Their headquarters are in Washington or Maryland.

In Fairfax County, Trial Justice Harry Carrico said all gambling cases coming to his court have been "small fry bookies."

even one house which won't give over 300 to 1 against heavily played numbers.

Deals among the pros arise from a mutual dislike for gambling. The bookie doesn't like to take chances. He wants a "balanced book" in which percentage alone will determine his profits.

When a bookmaker has accepted too much money on some numbers, thereby unbalancing his book, he "moves" or "lays off" the excess with his brethren. They usually give him 850 to 1, and accept his business to balance their own books.

Determining the Winner

At times, however, everybody gets out of balance simultaneously. A number will crop up in the news headlines, in connection with some event of the day. It will catch the fancy of the players, and thousands of dollars will be wagered on the same series of digits.

The method of determining the winning number has changed with the years. It used to be based on the United States Treasury's daily balance, on bank clearing statements, on stock market volume figures, and even on produce market statistics.

But the modern technique bases the winning number on the mutuel prices at a predetermined race track.

Illinois Track Used

Local bookies have currently agree to use the third, fourth and fifth races at a minor oval in Illinois, and they've agreed to continue using various Illinois tracks until the last of them winds up its fall meeting in November.

To determine the first winning "digit" each day, the total mutuel payoff in the third race is computed. In an imaginary race, the result might appear in some newspapers in this fashion:

War Admiral	6.00	3.80	2.90
Twenty Grand		5.50	3.10
Equipoise			2.20

TOTAL MUTUEL—$23.50

In other words, the six payoff prices are added together. The first number to the left of the decimal place in the total becomes the first winning "digit" for the day. In this case, it would be 3.

Similarly, the fourth race produces the second digit, and the fifth race produces the final digit. Those three digits, in the order of their determination, become the "number" for the day.

Odds Are Ruinous

This system is supposed to be foolproof, and give the player an honest run for his money. There are many recorded instances of tampering by agents of big bookies. But even when they don't try to "fix" the number, their odds remain ruinous.

At best, the average player gets 630 to 1 instead of the 999 to 1 which is representative of his risk. Out of every thousand dollars it plays, the public gets back a maximum of 630 dollars—a shrinkage of 37 per cent which sticks to the bookmaker or his runner.

Yet bookies find customers in homes, office buildings, government departments—and several other highly circumspect places around town.

Their runners contact the public on a face-to-face basis, usually keeping a rendezvous at a convenient time and place each day. Bets and payoffs are usually cash and carry, except for steady customers who run weekly tabs for "leave ins," or numbers which are played repeatedly.

Big Bets Played Safe

Some runners are employed directly by big bookmakers. Others work as semi-independents. The rugged individualists "hold" as much of their business as they dare, and book it at their own risk. When they get big bets, which they don't care to hold, they "lay off" all but a small amount with a big bookie, by telephone.

For example, a small operator who gets a dollar bet might hold 25 cents and lay off 75 cents. If the number hits, he pays off one dollar at 630 to 1 odds; total $630. But he collects $637.50 from the big bookmaker, who shells out 850 to 1 on his 75-cent "insurance" bet.

The big boys sit in huge offices in Maryland and Virginia for the most part, surrounded by batteries of telephones. The playing public is usually excluded from the immediate premises—and where the public isn't invited, the police are also most unwelcome.

Contaminated Drug Tested

RABBIT SHOWS EFFECTS—In the Food and Drug Administration laboratory here, Geoffrey Woodard, pharmacologist, observes two rabbits used yesterday in the test of a contaminated drug for which a Nation-wide search has been launched. The animal at left, which is "very sick and expected to die," was injected with a sample of the glucose-saline solution which is reported capable of causing injury or death. As many as 300 FDA inspectors and chemists have been sent to roundup the drug, called "Code No. CM 864 of 5 per cent glucose in normal saline." Three deaths are known to have occurred after patients were given the drug intravenously for the treatment of shock and collapse is no degree difference in principle.

"It would be helpful if the public were fully advised by the most eminent scientists of the competency of the present commission.

"As it now stands, I insist that a question of national security is being discussed on a basis of political expedience. I don't think the American people will stand for it."

The Senate Democratic Policy Committee meanwhile slapped at the original compromise proposal and decided to "go down the line" for the President's reappointment of all five members of the Commission on a staggered term basis.

The Democratic policy makers met before the second compromise was broached but hewed to the line of straight confirmation.

Senate Democratic Whip Scott W. Lucas (D., Ill.) charged Republicans are "making a political football of security appointments," adding:

"No one questions the character, loyalty or competence of these men. They have made good and should be treated as career appointments. The fight on their confirmation at this time is tragic."

The backstage confirmation fight broke after Senator Bourke B. Hickenlooper (R., Iowa), chairman of the congressional Atomic Energy Committee, last week reportedly requested the President to reappoint Lilienthal for only one year.

The President responded with a five-year reappointment of Lilienthal, a four-year reappointment of Sumner T. Pike, who was also under Republican fire, and staggered reappointments of the others.

Senator Robert A. Taft (R., Ohio), who fought Lilienthal's original appointment, opposed the five-year term but indicated he would go along with a one-year extension.

Yesterday's closed committee conference with the five scientists was reportedly called by Senator Hickenlooper at the suggestion of Senator Arthur H. Vandenberg (R., Mich.).

Compton, Oppenheimer There

Meeting with the committee were President Karl T. Compton of Massachusetts Institute of Technology; Dr. Vannevar Bush, chairman of the armed forces Research and Development Board; J. Robert Oppenheimer, chairman of the advisory committee of the Atomic Energy Committee members, Dr. I. I. Rabi of Columbia University and Dr. Lee A. DuBridge of the California Institute of Technology.

Chairman Hickenlooper declined to disclose details of the conferenct, but in other quarters it was said the chairman in effect put this question up to the scientists:

Should the committee go ahead and attempt to confirm the appointments, if it means another bitter round of hearings, with all the old controversial points aired and some new ones, and in the end a floor fight that could result in confirmation failure for one or two of the nominees?

Oppose 11-Month Term

Or should the committee recommend an amendment to the basic law, continuing the present setup in effect for 11 months, and thus avoid any confirmation row?

The scientists were reported solidly opposed to the 11-month alternative. They opposed anything that would reflect on the present membership of the commission, saying it had done an excellent job. They reputedly looked with more favor on the two-year extension proposal, however, although there were no fast commitments.

One informant said it was represented to the scientists that the opposition to confirmation did not come from the committee, which agreed the commission has done a fine job, but from "outside" the Senate atomic energy group.

Hickenlooper later told reporters he has not reached any conclusions on whether he will introduce an amendment to the basic law extending the present terms, or on duration of the terms.

within their power to bring all rail traffic to a dead halt.

In the present controversy, the traditional team of the Engineers and the Trainmen are not united. Two years ago, those brotherhoods caused a two-day strike. It ended when President Truman threatened to seize the roads and operate them with troops.

At that time he had seizure powers under wartime law. That authority has since expired.

Chronology of Dispute

Below is the chronology of the events leading up to the present situation:

October 7—Negotiations begun between railroads and Big Five operating brotherhoods.

November 14—Trainmen and conductors accept railroad offer of 15½ cents an hour. Engineers, switchmen and firemen hold out for 30 per cent increase.

November 20—Negotiations between roads and three holdout brotherhoods collapse.

November 24—National mediation board intervenes under Railway Labor Act.

January 16—Mediation Board announces failure, unions refuse to arbitrate. Strike date set for February 1.

January 27—President Truman appoints fact-finding board, delaying strike.

February 2—Fact-finding board begins investigation.

March 27—Board reports findings to President, recommends 15½-cent hourly increase.

April 14—Direct negotiations resumed.

April 27—Thirty-day cooling-off period expires; negotiations collapse.

April 28—Three operating railroad unions set May 11 as date for Nation-wide strike but official announcement held up; Government calls for new negotiations.

The measure now goes to the Senate, where it is predicted it has a good chance of passage.

The Maryland delegation voted: For repeal: Beall (R.), Fallon (D.), Garmatz (D.), Meade (D.) and Sasscer (D.). Against repeal: Miller (R.).

65 Escape Injury

Parkdale, Colo., April 28 (U.P.).—Sixty-five passengers aboard a Denver & Rio Grande Western train bound from San Francisco to Denver escaped injury today when the engine and three baggage cars were derailed at the mouth of the Royal Gorge.

Frederick Adds Only 300 Voters

Frederick, Md., April 28 (Spl.). Only 300 new voters were added to the Frederick County election books at yesterday's registration. The total was almost evenly divided between Republicans and Democrats.

In Jackson District, where a native son, Dawson J. Horine, is one of the Democratic candidates for Congress, only three new Democrats and two new Republicans were added to the rolls.

Manager Alleges Intimidation Of Wallace Aides

New York, April 28 (AP).—C. B. Baldwin, campain manager for Henry A. Wallace, charged today that local officials in West Virginia were waging a campaign of intimidation, violence and attempted bribery against Wallace petition circulators.

In a statement, Baldwin called on United States Attorney General Tom Clark and Gov. Clarence Meadows of West Virginia to stop the alleged campaign.

Local officials "have been using their office to install a reign of terror in Logan County," Baldwin said. The statement added:

"In Lorado, Logan County, the constable and two aides, all armed, illegally took away the credentials of a petition circulator, confiscated his petitions, visited the homes of those who signed his petitions and intimidated them into removing their names.

"The campaign worker was offered $150 if he would beat up any Wallace circulators. A sworn deposition attests to this."

The Wallace forces need 7200 signatures by May 10 to win a place on the November ballot in West Virginia.

Drive to Unionize South a Flop, CIO Man Admits

Atlantic City, N. J., April 28 (AP). A two-year-old CIO drive to unionize the South has been somethng of a flop, a Textile Workers Union spokesman said today. He asked that his name not be used.

"We're honest enough to admit it," he said. "Our executive council frankly says 'measured in terms of elections won and contracts signed, . . . results of the CIO Southern drive have not been great.'"

Emil Rieve, president of the Textile Workers, told the union's convention "the results of the drive in terms of members and new contracts have been poor."

Of 75,000 new members added to union rolls in the past two years, 15,000 were in the South, the spokesman said.

Rieve blamed "the forces of Southern reaction" for stalling CIO unionization.

Transatlantic Liners Booked to Capacity

Paris, April 28 (N.Y.H.T.) Steamship offices in Paris announced today that all transatlantic liners were booked to capacity until the end of September, thanks to round-trip ticket purchases by American tourists.

The results of the Italian elections were said to have been a major factor in reassuring Americans.

VMI Cadets to Aid In Dedication of Baltimore Statue

Lexington, Va., April 28 (AP). A contingent of Virginia Military Institute cadets will leave here Friday for Baltimore to participate in the dedication of the Lee-Jackson statue Saturday afternoon.

In a parade shortly before the unveiling, scheduled for 3 p.m., the cadets will join elements of the Second Army, the Maryland National Guard and the Baltimore Boy Scouts. The VMI cadets will be in full dress uniform.

The equestrian statue of Lee and Jackson marks their final parting place shortly before the Battle of Chancellorsville, where Jackson, a former VMI professor, was wounded fatally. The statue is the work of Laura Gardin Fraser.

Speakers at the unveiling will include Dr. Douglas Southall Freeman, southern historian, who will speak on "The Greatest American Combat Team;" Governor William Preston Lane of Maryland and Mayor Thomas D'Alesandro of Baltimore.

Abbitt Concludes His Roll-Call Spot Has Drawbacks

By The Associated Press

Virginia's freshman representative—Watkins M. Abbitt—took a look at his voting yesterday and decided:

1. That being first on the roll call has its disadvantages.

2. That he needs a bicycle or a motor scooter to get from his office to the House floor.

3. That he has voted in every case so far on the winning side.

As the first man on the House's alphabetically arranged list Abbitt has been "sounding off" without waiting to see how others are voting. A Representative missing the first call may vote on the second.

"I have yet to duck voting on the first roll call," he said.

Abbitt displaced Representative Abernethy (D., Miss.) as first member on the roll.

First Steps Taken For Coal Pensions

Against 6 Firms

CIO Asks Boycott in Meat Strike

The CIO yesterday called on its members and the public to boycott the products of the six big meat-packing firms now struck.

The appeal was issued by the nine CIO vice presidents, after a meeting with the organization's president, Philip Murray.

Meantime, there were indications that the 44-day-old strike might be broadened, Wayne Thurman, director of one district of the CIO United Packinghouse Workers, yesterday wired 5000 members in Michigan, Indiana, Ohio and Kentucky to prepare to strike.

About 13 independent meat plants would be affected. The largest are those of Hygrade, Kingan and Kuhner.

In Washington, conferences continued among the top union officers, representatives of the six companies, and Federal Mediation and Conciliation Service officials.

Those conferences, however, were described as being still in the "exploratory" stages. Concrete negotiations are not expected until later this week or early next.

The six struck firms are Armour, Swift, Cudahy, Wilson, Morrell and Rath. The union seeks a 29-cents-an-hour pay increase and has rejected a 9-cent increase from the packers.

The plants have been operating on a partial basis since March 16, when 10,000 union members walked out.

The CIO statement asked union officials to start a campaign, directed "particularly at housewives" to obtain pledges against purchasing the struck companies' wares.

It asked that the public join the CIO in a "Nation-wide insistence that we will eat no scab meat."

Bridges and Lewis Hope to Have Fund Operating Shortly

John L. Lewis and Senator Styles Brides (R., N. H.) yesterday took the first steps to get the coal miners pension fund in operation "in a matter of several weeks."

They acted over the objections of the third trustee, Ezra Van Horn, representing the coal operators. He has filed a suit to prevent putting the pension plan into operation.

But while Van Horn voted in the negative at a trustees' meeting yesterday, the miners' president and Bridges moved ahead. They named Lewis administrator of the pension fund. Then they selected Miss Josephine Roche, former Assistant Secretary of the Treasury in charge of the Public Health Service, and an erstwhile coal operator in her own right, as director of the fund.

Miss Roche, a longtime Federal official and a longtime friend of Lewis, was president of the Rocky Mountain Fuel Co., of Denver, which at one time the United Mine Workers aided in financing.

At a press conference which Van Horn declined to attend, Lewis and Bridges said that the first work would be to prepare application forms for retirement-age miners seeking pensions.

Meantime, they said, an office force would be built up, decisions would be made on mechanical aspects of getting the fund going, and actuarial and legal work would be done.

Neither would comment in any detail on the suit Van Horn filed. He had asked the court to hold Lewis and Bridges personally liable for any money they paid out. Lewis said he would get competent legal advice on the matter.

Outline of Plan

Under the plan approved by Bridges and accepted by the union president, five million dollars of the miners' welfare fund has been set aside to pay $100 a month to miners 62 years and over who have retired since May 29, 1946, or who will retire in the future.

The total fund, raised from royalties of 10 cents per ton of coal mined, now amounts to 34 million dollars. The trustees voted yesterday, Van Horn concurring on this, to invest 25 million dollars of it in short-term U. S. Government obligations.

Neither Bridges nor Lewis would state definitely when the first payments would be made. They thought it could be done in "several weeks," however.

In the interim, Bridges pointed out, the applications would be made and from them actuaries could determine with considerable exactitude just how much the plan would cost.

Bridges to Stay

Previous actuarial studies, he said, which held that proposed plans were not financially sound, were now meaningless. The reason, he continued, is that the present plan is based on different eligibility requirements from plans proposed earlier.

It was indicated that the cost calculations would be available before July 1, the expiration date of the present coal contract. They may show that present royalties are insufficient. Thus they may provide a basis for new demands by Lewis for increased payments from the operators.

Bridges scotched rumors, published yesterday afternoon, that his retirement as a welfare fund trustee was contemplatd. He emphasized that he had accepted the post only to meet an "emergency" situation, but said he was determined to stay and see a pension plan set up and in operation.

Senator Capper Isn't Quite That Hard of Hearing

Eighty-two-year-old Senator Arthur Capper, staunch Kansas Republican, is a little hard of hearing but still sharp on the uptake.

During a routine District Subcommittee hearing on legislation to permit preparations for the inaugural of the next President of the United States, Senator J. Howard McGrath (D., R. I.), who also happens to be chairman of the Democratic National Committee, turned to the elderly Kansan and kidded:

"Seems we need some money to inaugurate President Truman again!"

The GOP octogenarian cocked his head thoughtfully, as if mulling over the remark, and then responded:

"You won't be needing it."

Cathy O'Donnell Seeks Divorce After 4 Days

Hollywood, April 28 (U.P.).—Movie Starlet Cathy O'Donnell, 21, today filed suit for divorce against Screenwriter Robert Wyler, 40, from which she separated after only four days of marriage.

The actress charged that Wyler's extreme cruelty made her "nervous and rundown." The couple eloped to Las Vegas, Nev., April 10. It was the first marriage for both.

Austria's Objections To Slav Claims Filed

London, April 28 (AP).—Austria lodged tod yaits objections against Yugoslavia's claims for a big share of its southern provinces and for 150 million dollars in reparations.

Foregin Minister Karl Gruber told the four-power Foreign Ministers deputies that Yugoslavia could find no justification to support the geographic claims. He said Yugoslavia already had taken over 100 million dollars of Austrian property in Austria.

Earlier, Yugoslav Deputy Foreign Minister Ales Bebler scaled down his country's territorial claims from about 1000 square miles to 800.

ITU President Explains Risk In Guarantees

By the United Press

President Woodruff Randolph of the International Typographical Union (AFL) said yesterday his organization cannot afford to guarantee that its local unions will live up to their contracts.

He told a National Labor Relations Board trial examiner that the parent union could not take the "financial risk" involved.

"Since the Tift-Hartley Law makes it possible to sue local unions, the International cannot take any responsibility for these locals," Randolph said. "If we did, we would risk having our pension and mortuary funds dissipated."

He gave the explanation for removing a clause from his organization's contract proposal since last August 22. It would have guaranteed that the parent union would use its authority to make locals live up to their agreements.

Trial Examiner Arthur Leff is hearing charges by NLRB General Counsel Robert N. Denham that the union committed unfair labor practices under the Taft-Hartley Law. Denham accused the union of refusing to sign contracts, insisting on a closed shop in violation of the law, "feather-bedding" and coercion of employes.

During today's hearing, Randolph agreed that his union had achieved a "steady increase of satisfactory" wage agreements since a Federal court injunction barred it temporarily from enforcing its "no-contract" policy.

Political Ban On Unions Is Debated

By Dillard Stokes
Post Reporter

A lively debate over the Taft-Hartley ban on labor political action began in the Supreme Court yesterday.

Five justices threw questions at Prosecutor Jesse Climenko in the first quarter hour of his argument. Climenko and his colleague, Beatrice Rosenberg of the Justice Department staff, hope to persuade the court that the political action ban is constitutional.

Federal Judge Ben Moore ruled in the District Court here that it was not, and threw out charges on which CIO President Philip Murray might have gone to jail and both he and the CIO might have been fined. From Moore's ruling, the Government appealed to the high court.

Climenko told the justices that the Taft-Hartley Act made it a crime for any corporation or labor union to give or spend any money in connection with any Federal election or primary. Just a few days after this became law, Murray and the CIO spent union money to publish an editorial in support of Judge Ed Garmatz, who was running for Congress in Maryland.

"I thought it was a periodical," said Justice Black. Climenko explained that the editorial was in the newspaper CIO News.

The prosecutor gave Murray and the CIO credit for the "noblest of purposes," but he argued that Congress clearly has power to keep unions from going into politics.

"Is this the first indictment under the act?" asked Justice Murphy. Climenko said it was.

One Other Case

"No one else has been indicted?" Murphy pressed. The prosecutor said there had been one other case, a union having been charged with buying radio time.

"But no one else? Both indictments were against labor?" Murphy asked again. Climenko said that was right.

Justice Reed broke in to ask whether the law applied to any management organization besides corporations. Climenko said it did not, that industry is mostly run through the corporate device.

"Is a corporation defined in the law?" Justice Frankfurter wanted to know, and was told it was not.

"Is the CIO a corporate body?" Frankfurter asked. Climenko said it was not, that it was an unincorporated association. But he said the law told what was meant by a labor organization.

Ballistics Lab to Continue

Cumberland, Md., April 28 (AP).—The Allegany Ballistics Laboratory, operated by the Hercules Powder Co. for Navy ordnance, will continue here at least until 1950, it was announced today. Started during the war, the laboratory employs 300 and is engaged in research and development work.

Price of New Mercury Car Raised $420 on One Model

Detroit, April 28 (AP).—Price increases ranging from $315 to $420 on the 1949 model Mercury automobile were announced today by the Ford Lincoln-Mercury division.

List prices on the new models, which go on public display tomorrow are: six-passenger coupe, $1855; sport sedan, $1875; six-passenger convertible, $2225, and station wagon, $2495.

The $315 increase is on the six-passenger coupe and the $420 advance is on the station wagon.

Benson Ford, director of the Lincoln-Mercury division, announcing the price advances said:

"The 1949 Mercury is an all-new automobile designed expressly to serve a higher quality market than heretofore."

Westinghouse Stands Against Pay Increase

New York, April 28 (U.P.).—The Westinghouse Electric Corp. today joined steel and auto companies in opposing a "third round" of wage increases.

Gwilym A. Price, president of Westinghouse, also revealed that the company had slashed prices on some products about 5 per cent in the past four months. He estimated the cuts totaled nearly $14,500,000.

Price said his company opposes a wage boost now because that is the last remaining threat to "general price reductions" and "would start the price spiral upward once again."

Lukens Steel Rejects CIO Wage Demand

Coatesville, Pa., April 28 (AP).—Lukens Steel Co. today rejected a request of the CIO United Steelworkers for a "substantial wage increase."

C. D. Stackman, vice president in charge of company operations, said that "holding wages at current levels will help block a continuing inflationary wage-price spiral."

Colorado Fuel & Iron Opposes Wage Rise

Denver, April 28 (AP).—The Colorado Fuel and Iron Corp. announced today its discussion with the United Steelworkers of America (CIO) on the union's request for increased rates of pay has been concluded.

The corporation's statement said: "In line with the corporation's policy of stopping the rising spiral of inflation, price structure of C. F. & I.'s productions is now being closely studied."

Murray Asks Return Of Price Controls

Atlantic City, April 28 (AP).—Philip Murray, president of the CIO, told the United Textile Workers' convention here today that it is necessary to restore price controls because "the present program of so-called price decreases is going to have no effect upon living costs here in the United States."

Murray called price reductions by the steel industry "hypocritical, misleading propaganda emanating from the offices of the United States Steel Corp."

He said United States Steel could have reduced prices "in excess of 70 million dollars each year" instead of the announced 25 million dollars and "still maintain a reasonable profit in its businesses."

Murray said the corporation "gypped the public" last February and March when it raised prices of steel by "approximately $28,500,000."

Murray said prices cannot come down because the Government plans to spend approximately six billion dollars for foreign aid and approximately 40 billion dollars "in the field of rearmament."

Military Building In Area Approved

6 Million for Public Works Near D. C. Voted by House Armed Services Group

Expenditure of six million dollars for Army, Navy and Air Force public works in the immediate Washington area has been approved by the House Armed Services Committee.

The figure is included in a new economy-sized package totaling $417,620,855 for the Nation, trimmed down more than 81 million dollars under the omnibus bill approved by the same committee last year. The 1947 proposals failed to pass the House Rules Committee.

Reductions to reach the new figure were made by eliminating projects or curtailing spending proposed in the 1947 bills.

In Maryland, Virginia

Figures for proposed Maryland projects total $23,131,210; for Virginia, $4,769,920.

Largest expenditure proposed for the country under the new bills, which now go back to the rules committee, is the 12-million-dollar facility for flight indoctrination at the Naval Academy in Annapolis. The figure includes acquisition of 2400 acres of land.

The project, considered high priority by the Navy, would be located at Sandy Point, near Annapolis. Some residents of the area have opposed the field as "unnecessary and dangerous" and have urged an alternative site. The Senate Armed Services Committee held a hearing on the proposed field last July, but withheld action pending further study.

Other Proposals

Other proposals in the Washington-Virginia-Maryland area include:

Andrews Field, Md.—Family quarters and utilities, $3,143,630.

Fort Belvoir, Va.—Family quarters and utilities, $792,380.

Forest Glen, Md.—Plans and specifications for an Army institute of pathology building, a new 1000-bed general hospital and auxiliary facilities, $850,000.

Fort Myer, Va.—New field commissary refrigeration facilities, $108,000.

Naval Medical Center, Bethesda, Md.—Chapel, $205,000.

Camp Detrick, Md.—Family quarters, munitions loading building, crop research and utilities, $862,830.

Edgewood, Md. Arsenal—Family quarters, chemical laboratory facilities anad utilities, $959,950.

Camp Lee Va.—Family and bachelor quarters barracks and utilities, $2,902,870.

Fort George E. Meade, Md.—Family quarters and utilities, $995,800.

Vint Hill Farms Station, Va.—Family quarters and utilities, $782,300.

Naval Amphibious Base, Little Creek, Va.—Acquisition of 4000 acres of Bloodsworth Island, Dorchester County, Md., $120,000.

Naval Auxiliary Air Station, Oceana, Va.—Acquisition of 1000 acres, $60,000.

Norfolk Naval Shipyard, Portsmouth, Va.—Acquisition of land, $4370.

Naval Ordnance Laboratory, White Oak, Md.—Completion of supersonic wind tunnels and aerodynamics range, explosives research facility, $2,275,000.

2 Sentenced For Contempt Of Congress

Two more officials of the Joint Anti-Fascist Refugee Committee were fined $500 and given three-month jail terms in the District Court yesterday.

They were Helen Bryan, secretary, and Mrs. Ernestina G. Fleischmann, a member of the executive board, who were found guilty of contempt of Congress, for refusing to give the committee's records to the House Un-American Activities Committee.

Eleven other officials of the committee were found guilty of the same offense. They have asked the Supreme Court to hear their appeal.

Loyalty Check Unit Meets Today

A seven-man committee appointed by the Commissioners to consider a loyalty program for 17,000 District employes will hold its first meeting at 2 p. m. today.

The meeting will be held in the District Building office of Charles Ctofberg, Commissioner John Russell Young's special assistant, who is a member of the committee.

Special Assistant Corporation Counsel Daniel B. Maher, designated committee chairman, declined to discuss the "agenda" for the meeting.

Draft 'Blend' Suits Truman has much chance of being linked to the regular draft bill.

House Due to Pass Draft

Representative Henry D. Larcade, jr. (D., La.), who has sponsored a petition to bring UMT to the floor, told reporters yesterday he did not plant to offer the training bill as an amendment to the draft bill when the latter comes up for a vote. House GOP leaders predict passage of the draft some time next month.

The draft bill now being readied by the House committee would induct nonveterans aged 19 through 25 for two years' military service.

UMT would call up most 18-year-old youths for six months military training. They would not be in the Army, Navy or Air Force, but in a "National Training Corps" in separate camps and with separate instructors from regular soldiers and airmen. After completing their six months' training, the youths would go into the National Guard or Reserves for a period of years.

Year's Training Proposed

The Senate compromise plan would draft limited numbers of youths aged 18 to 19½ years for a year's training in the United States. They would be in the regular forces, and train and serve with regular units. After their 12 months in uniform, they would go into the Guard and Reserve and be exempt from the two-year draft.

There was no indication whether yesterday's White House defense conference also took up the other crucial problem of the preparedness program—the amount of money to be spent for new airplanes. Service chiefs now are in agreement that the Air Force should have 66 groups next year, but USAF officials want 822 million dollars more than recommended by President Truman and Forrestal to modernize the present groups.

Reds Claim 'Hundreds' Here

The Communist Party has "several hundred" card-carrying members in Greater Washington, including "a couple of policemen," according to William Taylor, District party chairman.

"We're conscious of the fact that a couple of policemen are in our organization as undercover agents," Taylor said.

Local Communist comment came in response to a story (in another newspaper) that the police were keeping tabs on secret activities of the Communists here. Police emphatically denied the story.

"We've made no effort to expel the police agents because we have nothing to hide," Chairman Taylor asserted.

"Fact is, when we sponsor a rally of any kind, so many police and detectives show up incognito, that we never fail to have enough of a crowd to get the meeting started on time."

Bot hpolice and party officials scoffed at the assertion in the news story that the police subversive squad was keeping constant observation over "at least four" local clergymen.

"Nothing to it," declared Lieut. Harry Blackman, who heads the squad.

"We've no clergmen members," declared Party Chairman Taylor.

Commission Asked to Permit U S. Employes To Take Part in Party Politics in D. C. Area

The Civil Service Commission was urged by Maryland nad Virginia political leaders yesterday to allow Federal employes to participate in local politics in nearby areas as members of political parties.

The three Commissioners took the requests under consideration. They probably will require several days to determine their authority under the Hatch Act and make a decision, a Commission spokesman said.

United States Representatives Lansdale G. Sasscer (D., Md.) and Howard W. Smith (D., Va.) led the group seeking a change in a Commission ruling that Government workers may take an active part in local elections only as independents.

The Hatch Act, which limits the political activity of Federal employes, give the Civil Service Commission authority to permit such employes to engage in local campaigns under certain circumstances.

Smith and Sasscer told the Commission that the Commission's present interpretation is unfair to both to Government workers and to good government in counties.

Contending the Commission has the power to liberalize its ruling, Smith said that in some areas, a man cannot be elected as an independent.

When you say a man must run for the County Board in Arlington as an independent," he declared, "you are cutting his feet from under him. It means he has no chance of election."

Stassen Bids For Delegates In New Jersey

Princeton, N. J., April 28 (AP).—Harold E. Stassen, jubilant over his lead in the Pennsylvania primary, came into New Jersey tonight to bid for its 35 votes in the Republican National Convention.

In a speech prepared for delivery on the campus of Princeton University, he called for strengthening the Nation's military forces, but said President Truman's proposals for universal military training and selective service go too far.

"The extreme power of call which we give to the military in time of war should not be given in this peacetime act," he said.

Tonight's meeting was sponsored by the university's "Students for Stassen" organization.

Stassen will spend two days in New Jersey, whose delegates are pledged to Gov. Alfred E. Driscoll as a favorite son. Tomorrow he will meet the delegates and leading Republicans at a luncheon in Trenton.

He devoted his prepared speech to foreign affairs, reiterating his demand for outlawing the Communist Party and reorganizing the United Nations to strip Russia of the veto power.

"There is a definite menace to the future freedom of men in the aggressive designs of the Communist totalitarianism of Russia," he said. "It is not enough that we eloquently attack and vehemently denounce this menace. For our own security and for the future freedom of men we should realistically analyze this world situation and develop well understood policies to meet it."

Gov. Thomas E. Dewey will speak in New Jersey May 26 and Senator Robert A. Taft on May 18.

GOP Warned Not to Select Vandenberg

In pamphlets being sent to prominent Republicans all voer the Country, Arlington County Treasurer John Locke Green is warning against nomination of Senator Arthur Vandenberg (R., Mich.) for President.

The 12-page booklet, largely correspondence between the Republican treasurer and Vandenberg, was compiled by Green and is being sent to GOP members of Congress, governors, and 1948 Republican Convention delegates.

In the pamphlets, Green says Vandenberg is definitely a GOP Presidential candidate, despite his statement in one letter: "I have asked that my name be neither presented nor supported."

The Arlington Republican leader asserted that if Vandenberg is nominated "on the face of . . . his active support of Truman, Marshall, and the New Deal," it will "bury the party completely."

According to letters reproduced in the pamphlet, Green on March 23 asked Vandenberg whether, if nominated, he would refuse to accept the nomination.

The Senator replied on April 5, according to Green, that he had said his "last word" on the question of the Republican nomination.

Gael Sullivan Resigns for $50,000 Job

GALE SULLIVAN

Packs up to leave

Gael Sullivan announced his retirement from politics yesterday to become executive vice president of the Theater Owners of America. The job will pay $50,000 a year.

Sullivan, 43, submitted his resignation as executive director and vice chairman of the Democratic National Committee, effective May 10. He will take over his new duties in New York and Hollywood June 1.

In a letter to Senator J. Howard McGrath of Rhode Island, chairman of the Democratic National Committee, Sullivan said that the post which had been offered to him would not wait until the end of the presidential campaign.

"I do not think I can turn it down without being unfair to my family," Sullivan said. "Now the time has come for my parting with politics. I have been and will be strongly for President Truman and the cause of the Democratic Party . . . Participation in partisan politics must end when I leave the committee. However, my heart will be with you."

Mass. Parties Back Truman, Saltonstall

Boston, April 28 (AP).—Massachusetts is sending unpledged delegations to the national political conventions—but the Democrats are expected to line up behind President Truman, and the Republicans to back a "favorite son."

Less than 7 per cent of the more than two million registered voters—the lightest in history—turned out for the presidential primaries yesterday.

Athree-way fight for control of the 36-man Democratic delegation highlighted the balloting, with two veteran campaigners coming out on top—United States Representative John W. McCormack, minority whip in Congress, and Mayor James M. Curley of Boston.

Supporters of McCormack are boosting him as Truman's running mate; Curley has sung the praises of Gen. Douglas MacArthur, but now says he's going to Philadelphia with "an open mind."

Massachusetts Republicans intend to cast their 35 votes on the first ballot for United States Senator Leverett Saltonstall as a "favorite son"—then possibly switch to House Speaker Joseph W. Martin, jr., if he has a chance as a compromise nominee.

Stassen Tops GOP Hopefuls In Pennsylvania, Dewey Is 2d

Philadelphia, April 28 (AP).—Presidential Candidate Harold E. Stassen rode a 2-to-1 Philadelphia lead to an approximate 5000-vote victory today in industrial Pennsylvania's Republican preferential primary.

The former Minnesota Governor, fresh from delegate successes in agricultural Wisconsin and Nebraska, said at Trenton, N. J., the Pennsylvania result "may turn out to be a key event in the nomination."

"The support which I have been receiving in the rural areas as evidenced by the Nebraska returns, now seems to be developing in the industrial areas," he told reporters.

Dewey Also Gratified

But at Albany, N. Y., Gov. Thomas E. Dewey, Stassen's only close competitor in the exclusively write-in balloting, said the "spontaneous" vote he received was "particularly gratifying."

And Gov. James H. Duff—who has not disclosed his support of any candidate—said the Dewey total "had the most significance."

The Governor, key figure in Pennsylvania Republican politics, added that "I don't know that the people knew Senator Arthur H. Vandenberg, (of Michigan) is a candidate. If it had been known definitely I am sure there would have been a very different result with respect to him.

"I definitely attribute the fact that his vote was not larger to the fact that the people did not know he was available."

The Governor did not reply to a reporter's question whether an "inference" could be drawn on Vandenberg's availability.

Vandenberg was sixth behind Stassen, Dewey, Senator Edward Martin, Gen. Douglas MacArthur and Senator Robert A. Taft. He was ahead of Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower and Henry Wallace.

With 7339 of the State's 8262 precincts reported, and no prospect of substantial change until the official count is available, the totals were:

Stassen, 74,289.
Dewey, 69,426.
Martin, 41,318.
MacArthur, 17,181.
Taft, 14,072.
Vandenberg, 7944.
Eisenhower, 4350.
Wallace, 1262.

In the State's two great metropolitan centers of Philadelphia and Pittsburgh, Stassen's lead was 10,969. For the State as a whole, he was ahead by 4863, with Dewey leading outside the two big cities by 6106.

Jay Cooke, Stassen chairman in Pennsylvania, said the candidate's "victory was all the more impressive because it was a spontaneous write-in vote."

Truman Polls 242,264

Democratic voters in 6985 precincts cast 242,264 votes for President Truman. His name was the only one on the ballot. Eisenhower got 5647 Democratic write-in votes and Wallace 3614.

The primary vote is not binding on Pennsylvania delegations, which will be the second largest in the National Republican and Democratic conventions.

State Republican leaders have said their 73 votes will not be pledged in advance, but will be cast for Senator Martin as the State's favorite son. Democratic leaders have announced support of President Truman's candidacy, but their 74-vote delegation also is unpledged.

Duff termed the vote "just a pittance" of the total Republican registration of 2,676,972. And he said any inference that the write-in ballots would govern the convention delegation "would not be based on a realistic analysis of the situation."

Irgun Forces Claim Foothold in Jaffa

Jewish Flag Flies in Manshieh Quarter As Reinforcements Are Sped to Front

Jerusalem, April 28 (AP).—Irgun Zvai Leumi claimed capture of the Manshieh quarter of Jaffa tonight and sped troops and equipment to the front to maintain the battering thrust of its drive into the all-Arab city.

Before nightfall the Jewish underground army raised the blue and white Hebrew flag over the Manshieh quarter's Hassan Beq mosque. Manshieh sticks out like a mile-long thumb into the no man's land separating Jaffa from all-Jewish Tel Aviv.

Irgun troops and equipment convoys were seen moving out of Tel Aviv tonight into the no man's land. A high Irgun commander said the assault on Jaffa would continue despite British warnings.

Haganah Attacks Help

Irgun was aided in its Manshieh drive today by Haganah, the regular Jewish militia, which staged strong predawn attacks on at least four suburbs in an Arab defense arc east and southeast of Jaffa. A Haganah spokesman said, however, that although the attacks were complementary, they had not been intended that way.

The British and Haganah announced that Royal Air Force planes machine gunned Jewish positions at Bat Yam, near Jaffa. Bat Yam is a Jewish base for the attack on Jaffa.

Residents of all-Jewish Tel Aviv were warned to be ready to take to first floor rooms and basements in event the British shell that city in retaliation for the Jaffa attack. There was no indication from Tel Aviv that such action had begun.

It was officially announced in Jerusalem that British army units had gone into action this morning "to break up the attack by Jews on Jaffa."

[The United Press said British tanks were being used in the action.]

Arabs Move Troops

King Abdullah of Trans-Jordan, ignoring British denials, said in Amman his Arab legionnaires had occupied the Biblical town of Jericho, 20 miles northeast of Jerusalem, with "scout troops which always precede the regular army." An Associated Press reporter, who went directly to Jericho, was told by the legion commander the troops were there only under British orders to protect British evacuation routes from Palestine.

Associated Press Correspondent Max Boyd, who arrived in Jerusalem today from Cairo, saw at least one train of 25 or 30 cars loaded with guns and vehicles of the Egyptian army moving toward the southern Palestine frontier. There was still no official news that any Arab army had actually crossed the frontier.

(United Secretary of State George Marshall said in Washington that the United States had been assured by an Arab League spokesman that Arab armies are not invading Palestine at this time. Marshal said he believed they would not do so.

(British Foreign Secretary Ernest Bevin refused to say in the House of Commons whether Britain would continue to finance and officer the Trans-Jordan Arab Legion after surrender of the mandate May 15. Bevin reaffirmed British determination to withdraw from Palestine by that date.)

[The United Press quoted a Trans-Jordan spokesman as saying that Arab armies will invade Jerusalem within 10 days.]

The Trans-Jordan spokesman said "all Arab regular armies will take action long before May 15," the date the British plan to end their Palestine mandate.

Regent Emir Abdul Ilah of Iraq said tonight that "all Arab countries are completely agreed to rescue Palestine, and their official armies will soon take action."

Marshall Urges Truce In Palestine

Secretary Marshall expressed the hope yesterday that Arabs and Jews would agree to a truce in Palestine and avert a major conflict.

The Secretary said he had been assured by an Arab League spokesman that the neighboring Arab countries were not now invading the Holy Land. He added what he called his general impression that they had no intention of invading.

Later the State Department announced the appointment of former Assistant Secretary John H. Hilldring as Marshall's special assistant for Palestine affairs. The appointment was a clear sign of intense American diplomatic effort, first, to avert an armed explosion on May 15, when the British are scheduled to leave Palestine; and, second, to set up a system under which Arabs and Jews in Palestine can live in peace.

The British Ambassador, Lord Inverchapel, discussed the Palestine problem yesterday with Undersecretary Lovett and other officials. He told reporters the talk also covered the western European union and other matters affecting the European Recovery Program.

Pair Held After Arms Seizure

Joseph Untermeyer — Isaiah Warshaw
Associated Press WIREPHOTOS

Nineteen-year-old Joseph Untermeyer, a student and son of a poet, and Isaiah Warshaw, 30, a watchmaker, both of New York, were arraigned there yesterday on charges of possessing concealed weapons after police uncovered a large cache of rifles, bayonets and ammunition in food packages destined for Palestine. The arms were discovered in a loft building on Manhattan's lower Westside. The two were released in custody of their attorneys

Defeat Dissolves Italian Alliance

Communists and Socialists Abandoning Leftist Popular Front Organization

Rome, April 28 (AP).—Communists and Socialists will abandon their formal alliance following defeat in Italy's election, it was learned today.

The leftist Popular Front will be maintained only as a "sort of coordinating committee," interviews with Communist and Socialist information directors disclosed.

They indicated Communists and their leftist allies will formally charge fraud in the election and are now gathering informaiton.

Pro-Communist Socialists, under the new leadership of Vice Secretary General Lelio Basso, will assume direction of leftist political propaganda.

Leftists will try to strengthen their hold on six million organized workers, and lay groundwork for this fall's election of Italy's 18 regional parliaments.

The Communist Party itself is underground a reorganization of regional leadership.

Jiacinto Cardona, socialist informaton director, said Pietro Nenni, nominal Socialist Party leader, will relinquish direction of the party's pro-Communist organ Avanti because "he needs a long rest." Cardona said Sandro Pertini, former resistance leader is expected to assume Nenni's post.

Italy Guards Yugoslav Border After Shooting

Udine, Italy, April 28 (U.P.).—The Italian army command announced tonight that two companies armed with mortars have reinforced the Italo-Yugoslav frontier area where one Italian and one Yugoslav soldier were killed in a gunfight Monday.

Planes Speed Greek Drive On Guerillas

Athens, Greece, April 28 (U.P.).—Greek planes sped up the offensive against guerillas in the Roumeli area of south central Greece today as the sun came out after days of heavy snow and rain.

Ground troops made little headway, although they still surrounded an estimated 2000 guerillas and were closing in on two leftist battalions spotted west of Lidoriki, military dispatches said.

The snow was reported more than 6 feet deep on the top of Mounts Iti, Giona and Parnassos and some hostages and their families accompanying the retreating rebels were reported freezing to death.

Inclement weather which prevailed all over Greece halpted Third Army Corps clearing operations, northeast of Salonika.

Court Denies Pelley Plea for Freedom

William Dudley Pelley, former leader of the Silver Shirts of America, yesterday lost a District Court fight for freedom from jail.

Judge T. Alan Goldsborough dismissed a plea by Pelley, who is serving a 15-year term in Indiana for violation of sedition laws, that the court compel the United States parole board to free him because he has served one-third of his sentence and has maintained "good behavior."

Judge Goldsborough ruled a parole was a matter for the "discretion" of the parole board.

Military Planners To Meet in London

Delegates to Conference Opening Friday Expected to Begin Work on Joint Command

London, April 28 (U.P.).—The Western European Military Conference will open here Friday, and well-informed sources expected the delegates to begin work on plans for a unified command, joint army, navy, air force operations and standardization of equipment.

The Foreign Office officially announced that Defense Ministers and Chiefs of Staff from Britain, France, Belgium, the Netherlands and Luxembourg will study military and security matters.

Reports the United States and Britain have agreed on a joint plan of defense against the Soviet Union lent new importance to the talks.

The London Times published prominently a dispatch, quoting Ferdinand Kuhn, writing in The Washington Post, that an Anglo-American plan for joint action in event of a sudden Russian attack in Berlin or elsewhere had been approved recently by the combined Chiefs of Staff of the two nations.

A government spokesman here disclaimed knowledge of such agreement, but other well-informed sources accepted the report. They pointed out that the United States and Britain had agreed more than a year ago to standardize small arms, exchange cadets and cooperate otherwise militarily.

These quarters expected the military conference to extend the joint measures and plans to France and the Benelux states.

The United States, reliable sources said, has advised the western powers there can be no American backing for the Western European Union until the states have drawn up joint plans for a unified command, joint operations and standardization of supplies.

Britain will be represented by Defense Minister A. V. Alexander, Chief of the Imperial General Staff; Field Marshal Viscount Montgomery, and Lieut. Gen. Sir Leslie Hollis of the Defense Ministry. General Hollis recently paid a secret visit to Washington.

Britain also is continuing her own defense preparations. The RAF announced it will hold a secret technical exercise to study the effects of scientific air warfare developments next month.

Assembly Set For Framing German Rule

London April 28 (NYHT).—The six western powers conferring on the future of western Germany have agreed to convene a constituent assembly on September 1 to draw up a constitution for a western German government, it was learned tonight. The government is expected to begin to function by early next year.

Conferees are confident final agreement will be reached within the next three weeks.

The delegates of the United States, Britain, France, Belgium, The Netherlands and Luxembourg have held almost daily consultations.

Progress was reporte don political aspects but the question of international allocation of the coal, coke and steel of the Ruhr is unsolved.

The constitution will be submitted to the three western military governors for approval. Then it will be submitted to the people for ratification at a plebiscite. A two-thirds majority will be sufficient.

It is believed the three western powers will insist on some form of control over defense, foreign policy and financial affairs.

The general agreement already reached is believed to rule out the problem of mergin the French occupation zone with th Anglo-Amrican bizonal administration. Whn the German government is formed, zonal barriers automatically will cease to exist in the west.

Czechs to Get 'Free' Election With Regime's Candidates Only on Ballot

Prague, Czechoslovakia, April 28 (U.P.).—Communist Minister of Interior Vaclav Nosek announced that "completely free and democratic" parliamentary elections will be held in Czechoslovakia on May 30.

Nosek said the new parliament will be elected for six years under a proportional representation.

"Every vote will carry full and equal weight," Nosek said.,

There is little doubt as to the outcome. The regime can't lose. The voter will choose between a single list, including all party candidates in one bloc, and a blank ballot.

Reliable sources said 70 per cent of the candidates on the single list will be Communists. The blank ballot will be, as Nosek said, a means of "expressing disapproval."

Parliament today passed six nationalization bills by a standing vote.

The bills put under government control: (1) All industries with more than 50 active employes. 2) Metal and glass industries, now partly state-owned. (3) All food, sugar and spirit enterprises. (4) The building industry. (5) All wholesale firms. (6) All foreign trade and transportation.

Belgrade, Yugoslavia, April 28 (AP).—The National Assembly voted today an absolute end to all private industry in Yugoslavia.

The bill also turned into state ownership all real property of foreign citizens except foreign peasant farmers working the land personally, foreign diplomats official needs, and apartments which serve the owner as a residence.

The bill brings under state ownership "all those corporations which, by their character and capacity, have general importance to the federal and republican economy, for the protection of the peoples' health and the cultural development of the peoples' masses."

The All-New 1949 Mercury

You've seen a lot of "new models."

Once in a long, long time you see a new car.

Today is one of those times. The 1949 Mercury on our floor is the car.

With your very first look you'll know Mercury is new, all-new. From the front? Mercury is wider, with strikingly handsome grillwork, and exciting new fender treatment completely enclosed in a sleek, graceful, curved-arch silhouette. From the side? Mercury is longer and lower, with a poised-for-flight look that gives an illusion of motion even when the car is standing still. From the back? Mercury has all the luxurious styling you expect to find only in a car far above Mercury's price class.

This 1949 Mercury is a product of 1949-plus engineering. It has a big, rugged frame—with safety, stamina and down-to earth roadability in every inch of it. There's all-new spring suspension, with a lullaby ride above it.

New safer, wider rims—with new, bigger super-balloon tires—make shocks and sidesway a thing of the past. There are all-new super-brakes with velvety "STOP" in 'em, and a new 8-cylinder, V-type power plant with get-up-and-"GO" in it—a power plant designed and built exclusively for Mercury! There's even a new, fog-free, leakproof "Fingertip Weather Control" so you can flood the car with fresh, outside air at your will.

It's here, waiting for you to see. All-new beauty, all-new comfort, all-new performance. Every inch and pound is all-new—inside and out, top to bottom, front to back. Available in a choice of superb body styles, including Mercury's all-new Six-passenger Coupe and Six-passenger Convertible.

Joint Resolution May Support Western Europe Bloc

17, said he felt sure the United States would support the new western European union.

In the last few days it has virtually been decided that a congressional resolution, in general terms, would be the best device attainable now.

At the same time members of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee have been thinking of another resolution that might sidetrack the rash of proposals now before Congress for outright revision of the U. N. Charter. One proposal for revision, sponsored by Senator Homer Ferguson (R., Mich.) and 15 other Senators of both parties, would amend the Charter almost out of recognition; a similar scheme has been proposed in the House by Representative Walter H. Judd (R., Minn.) and 13 others.

The House Foreign Affairs Committee decided yesterday to hold public hearings, starting Tuesday, on a batch of resolutions affecting the U. N. Ambassador Warren R. Austin will be the first witness on the bill to lend the U. N. 65 million dollars for its permanent headquarters.

Single Resolution Possible

Unless present plans are changed, the House hearings will develop into a public inquest into the weaknesses of the U. N. and a sounding board for individuals and groups with far-reaching plans for remedying them.

So far the Senate Foreign Relations Committee has fought shy of public hearings in this field, but is working on a counter-resolution that might satisfy some of the critics and take away some of their present undoubted public support.

In fact, one informed congressional source thought yesterday that a single resolution, with strong bipartisan support, might accomplish two aims at once—first, to reassure western Europe by calling for a regional defense pact under the Charter; and second, by the same token, to show the determination of Congress to strengthen the U. N.

Conference Results Secret

Both Secretary Marshall and Senator Vandenberg firmly declined yesterday to disclose what they had discussed or decided in their Tuesday night meeting at Blair House with Undersecretary Robert A. Lovett and John Foster Dulles, Republican adviser in foreign policy.

Secretary Marshall did say that a guarantee to western Europe was still under consideration, and also that the Tuesday night meeting dealt with the resolutions now pending in Congress about the U. N. He said it was his first meeting with Vandenberg since returning from Bogota, but he deprecated the idea that there was anything unusual or especially important about it.

He said he had seen Vandenberg often in confidential meetings since becoming Secretary of State, and that Blair House was simply a convenient and pleasant place to meet.

Arms Aid Considered

The Secretary added that the possible supply of American arms to western Europe was also under consideration, but would say nothing further about it. At the Capitol, however, Chairman Charles A. Eaton (R., N. J.) of the House Foreign Affairs Committee disclosed that his group had asked the State Department weeks ago to draft a virtual lend-lease bill for sending arms to the free nations abroad.

He said the request was made during the closed hearings of the Foreign Assistance Act, signed by President Truman on April 3.

"But I'm afraid," said Eaton, "it is going to be too late to do anything about it now. We are not going to take it upon ourselves to write a bill, and apparently the departments downtown aren't able to get together on one."

Marshall was asked yesterday whether he had any plans for meeting with Foreign Secretary Ernest Bevin of Britain and Foreign Minister George Bidault of France. He said he had none at present.

Finns' Treaty With Russia Is Ratified

Helsinki, Finland, April 28 (AP).—Finland's Parliament gave formal approval today after three weeks debate to the mutual assistance pact with Rusia. Nearly one-fourth of the 200 members abstained or voted nay on ratification.

The pact, signed in Moscow April 6 on Premier Marshal Stalin's request, links Finland for 10 years in the Soviet network of alliances that now reaches from the Aretic to the Black Sea.

Premier Mauno Pekkala had staked his government on ratification, and President Juho Paasikivi had personally appealed for its approval.

Seven Liberals, three Agrarians and one Conservative voted against it, and 32 abstained. One hundred and fifty-seven voted for ratification.

Russia acquired no new bases in Finland by the treaty, and agreed to mutual consultations in case of a threat of aggression before invoking provisions for joint defense of Finland's borders. Finnish troops are not obligated to fight outside their own country.

Delaware GOP Names 9 Unpledged Delegates

Dover, Del., April 28 (U.P.).—Nine unpledged delegates were named to the Republican National Convention today by Delaware's GOP "little convention."

No candidate choice was made, but it was expected that a complimentary nomination of former United States Senator John G. Townsend, jr., as a favorite son would be made on the first ballot.

Bartlett Far Ahead In Alaska Primary

Juneau, April 2 (AP).—Early returns from Alaska's primary election indicated today Congressional Delegate E. L. Bartlett was making a runaway of his race for Democratic renomination against R. H. Stock.

Bartlett held a 2-to-1 lead in Juneau, was in front at Fairbanks by 588 to 105 and at Seward 222 to 41. Only at Seward, where 269 votes were cast, were the unofficial returns complete.

Home-Rule Propaganda

Joseph P. O'Hara, a member of the occupying legislature by which the District of Columbia is now ruled, observed in the course of a speech the other night that "sinister and disastrous consequences" would follow passage of the Auchincloss bill to give this community a measure of self-government. Mr. O'Hara was sent here from a portion of the country known as the Gopher State or, to use its Indian name, Minnesota, which was organized as a Federal territory in 1849 and admitted to the Federal Union as a State in 1857 when it had achieved a population of nearly 150,000—and at a time when the people of the National Capital were considered quite capable of managing their own affairs.

Mr. O'Hara denounced Washington press and radio "propaganda" for the Auchincloss bill and told his audience—consisting of fellow Minnesotans—that volumes of editorials and articles were written in favor of it, as though somehow or other there was something grossly immoral about this yearning for a return to home rule on the part of native Americans. Let us hope that men who come from States longer accustomed to the right of suffrage than Minnesota will better understand why their fellow-Americans aspire to it.

Abdullah's Position

Whether Emir Abdullah of Transjordania is or is not moving into Palestine, there is little doubt in our minds that he holds the key to Jew-Arab understanding, and that the British hold the key to Emir Abdullah.

Hitherto, however, the great powers since last November have been engaged in pushing the Emir into the arms of the Arab League. This league has been widely touted by some of our diplomats as well as our military, as a formidable combination capable of proclaiming and leading a jehad, or holy war. The plain fact is that it is a loose body, in great part of British creation, composed of hardly reconcilable elements. Abdullah cannot forget that King Ibn Saud of Saudi Arabia robbed his family of their rightful kingdom, their native Hejaz. He likewise is at dagger's drawn with the man who is running the Arab Higher Committee in Palestine, namely, the Mufti. Both of them are doing everything in their power, by intrigue and otherwise, to bring about Abdullah's downfall. The notion that he would open his kingdom to forces belonging to his enemies is too fantastic to be entertained. Yet Trans-Jordan, which is the main territory abutting upon Palestine, would have to be used in any large-scale invasion.

It is clear in the nature of things that Abdullah must be scared that his own kingdom might invite partition by his enemies if he goes into all-out collision with the Palestine Jews. His dilemma is extreme. Strong action by the United Nations might have spared him from it, but, looked at from Trans-Jordan, and, indeed, from the whole of the Middle East, the United Nations must now seem even more pallid than the Arab League. And the United States, which he doesn't know but from which he longs for recognition, cannot give him any confidence as to its reliability. The fact is as apparent here as it is there that America has been dazzled by bogeys created by romantic Arabophils, some of them members of our foreign service, who showed their loyalty by kicking through the American goal as soon as the Assembly and the United States had backed the Sundstrom report in favor of partition.

Abdullah, however, does know the British. His kingdom is the only one in the Middle East that is tied body and soul to the British. The only one of the rulers who does not subsist on oil royalties, he is kept going by a direct subsidy from the British, and the British, moreover, run his army, second-best in the Middle East to the Jewish Haganah. That army is the Arab Legion, 25,000 strong. At present part of it is being "borrowed" by the British administration in Palestine as police. The Jewish Agency charges that the forces are being used to allow positions, as, for instance, the airport at Lydda, to fall into Palestine Arab hands. Be this as it may, the Arab Legion without the British and Abdullah himself without the British would be in a parlous condition.

Whether the British can now use their influence over Abdullah in behalf of peace with justice is problematical. That they have lost touch with realities and are taking counsel of their fears was indicated in the collapse of what an authoritative English newsletter calls their "treaty mania" with the Arabs. The incredible Foreign Secretary Bevin actually refused to tell a critical House of Commons yesterday whether the British would continue to finance, arm and officer Abdullah's Legion in the event of invasion of Palestine. Abdullah must feel in a cleft stick as a result of the imbroglio about Palestine. All that has happened since last November has, indeed, put a premium on intransigence in the Middle East, both among the Arabs and among the Jews. Goodwill alone will never produce results in Arab lands subject to Pasha control. Force is needed to back goodwill, resolve as well as paper must clothe resolutions. Mr. Churchill made this plain during the 1937 debate on the Peel scheme of partition. In an advertisement in The Washington Post yesterday the Committee for Justice and Peace in the Holy Land asks Americans to "support the plans of their Government" because partition has been shown to be "unworkable." Nothing in the Holy Land has yet been shown to be unworkable except irresolution.

Atom Appointments

No term prettier than politicking can be applied to the proposal that the atomic energy commissioners be reappointed for only one-year or two-year terms. The aim is obvious—to postpone putting the commission on a permanent basis until nominations to it can be controlled by the Republican Party which hopes to occupy the White House in 1949. The effect would be to make this vital agency, carefully divorced from politics under the terms of the Atomic Energy Act, a political plum, a part of the spoils system. The principal author of the act, Senator Brien McMahon, is quite right in asserting that "it is as unthinkable to apply the test of political fitness to members of the Atomic Energy Commission as it would be to apply the test in the selection of a Chief of Staff for the Army or a Chief or Operations for the Navy."

A letter from Robert P. Patterson, former Secretary of War, appearing elsewhere on this page, lucidly exposes the peril in this kind of politicking. "Our survival as a Nation," he points out, "may well depend on the intelligence, skill and vigor with which the atomic energy project is carried forward. Of all activities in the country there is none more vital to our safety than this activity. If a hostile power should get the lead on us in development of atomic energy, the future would be dark indeed." Yet this is precisely the risk which the proposed postponement would run. Nothing could put American supremacy in graver jeopardy than delay or uncertainty in the shaping of policy and the fostering of research. It amounts, as Senator McMahon put it, to "reckless trifling with the national defense."

The five men now serving on the Atomic Energy Commission, whose reappointment for the regular terms prescribed by the act the President has recommended to the Senate, were originally selected strictly on grounds of peculiar fitness without regard to partisan affiliation. They were confirmed only after extraordinarily exhaustive investigation and debate. They have served a probationary period which has amply demonstrated their competence and afforded them an expensive—indeed, a unique—education. As a result, it is fair to say today, literally, that no other Americans possess their qualifications in terms of direct experience with atomic energy problems. To replace them at this time or, even worse, to make their tenure tentative, would be to do a dangerous disservice to the Nation precisely when its security should be the paramount consideration of the Congress. The watchword in respect of atomic energy must be progress, not procrastination.

As Others See Us

Writing in the London Observer, Alan Morehead says that in his opinion "a man can talk more freely in England than he can in America." Mr. Morehead is only one of many observant Europeans who have expressed similar views after visiting this country. At the moment the popular feeling against communism is so great as to silence the voices of many who may have communistic leanings or are critical of the methods being followed in combating the menace of communism. But at all times there are certain subjects on which a dissenting minority hesitates to express their real opinions, taking refuge in silence or trite generalizations that conceal their real sentiments. In the South, for instance, open and frank discussion of racial problems has always been the exception rather than the rule. As a result a solution of racial problems has been hindered by a conspiracy of silence that happily is in process of being broken down.

Americans are apt to forget that the political freedoms they enjoy do not insure independent expression of opinion by individuals. Nowhere is the force of majority public opinion more powerful than in a democracy, as Alexis de Tocqueville pointed out more than a hundred years ago in his penetrating study of Democracy in America. "I know of no country," he declared, "in which there is so little independence of mind and real freedom of discussion as in America. In any constitutional state in Europe every sort of religious and political theory may be freely preached and disseminated." If a man is so unfortunate as to live under an absolute government "the people are often on his side; if he inhabits a free country, he can, if necessary, find a shelter behind the throne." But in America "the majority raises formidable barriers around the liberty of opinion; within these barriers an author may write what he pleases, but woe to him if he goes beyond them."

It is salutary for us to see ourselves occasionally as others see us. It is especially worth while to be reminded of our own inhibitions at the present time when the Nation is confronted by great issues that produce violent emotional reactions and tend to make the majority of the people intolerant of the views of the minority. We are the fortunate inheritors of a system of government that protects the right of the individual to voice his opinions without being penalized for so doing. But there is a kind of freedom that laws cannot insure—freedom to express one's mind without fear of social or economic ostracism.

Offshore Oil

There is an interesting contrast between the alacrity with which the wheels of congressional machinery turned in respect of Senator Moore's bill to give away the rich mineral resources along the Nation's coasts and the oblivion accorded the legislation requested by the Attorney General and the Secretary of the Interior to preserve these resources for the people of the United States. Senator Moore's bill was referred to the Judiciary Committees of the House and the Senate; a subcommittee of each held hearings on it and without delay recommended favorable action. The proposal urged by the executive branch of the Government was referred, on the other hand, to the Senate Committee on Interior and Insular Affairs and to the House Committee on Public Lands—a commentary on congressional streamlining—where in both cases it was promptly pigeonholed.

There is involved in this matter of offshore oil much more than meets the eye—much more, perhaps, than can even be dreamed of. In addition to the conjectured riches of the marginal sea which the Supreme Court last year declared that the Federal Government "has paramount rights in and power over," there may be immeasurable reservoirs of oil awaiting exploitation far offshore in the continental shelf. On Monday, Secretary of Defense Forrestal, Attorney General Clark and Secretary of the Interior Krug jointly sent a letter to the chairmen of the two committees to which the Government's proposal has been submitted, advising them of the recent "discovery of significant geological structures underlying the continental shelf from 20 to 75 miles from shore in the Gulf of Mexico." The three Cabinet officers point out that these structures may, like the similar domes lying inland from the gulf, contain vast stores of petroleum recoverable by modern drilling techniques. "This area," they remind Congress, "is within that claimed for the United States by the President by proclamation and executive order" and suggest that "this discovery of a potential source of oil emphasizes the fact that Congress should not attempt to disturb the rights of the United States in the marginal seas, as decided by the Supreme Court."

It is astonishing that Cabinet officials should be obliged to plead with Congress not to "disturb the rights of the United States." It is even more astonishing that a national legislature should consider giving away a priceless national inheritance. And it is altogether incomprehensible, is it not, that at a time when it is manifesting grave concern over the national defense this legislature should be ready to relinquish a resource which is a kind of lifeblood of military security.

Hands Off, Mr. Taber

The interest manifested by Chairman Taber of the House Appropriations Committee in Administrator Hoffman's plans for allocation of ECA funds is decidedly perturbing. In the first place, any estimates of the amounts required by the participating countries are at present in the nature of preliminary informed guesses. Mr. Hoffman has not even had time to check and revise those estimates. Secondly, premature announcements of decisions subject to change raise hopes that may be disappointed and are likely to bring protests from participating countries that think they are entitled to a larger slice of the common fund.

But these are minor irritations after all; the major danger suggested by Mr. Taber's probing activities is the possibility that he will use the information placed at his disposal to work out some plan of his own for distributing ECA funds, or attach conditions to their utilization that would tie the hands of the administrator and impair the effectiveness of the recovery program. In view of Mr. Taber's habit of incorporating policy-making legislation in appropriations measures, there is good cause for anxiety regarding his intentions.

Firetrap

It is not exactly earth-shaking news, considering the seeming propensity of President Truman for the hot seat, that the White House has been dubbed a firetrap by Public Buildings Commissioner W. E. Reynolds. Mr. Reynolds goes whole-hog and adds: "The building is just standing up by habit." This is of course an ugly libel on the Executive Mansion, the worse because it is now placed in the same category with such honorable firetraps as the District Home for the Aged and Infirm at Blue Plains. Leaving aside the esthetic jolt in such invidious comparisons, however, the situation is surely one that somebody ought to do something about.

How much of the fire danger could be avoided by a strict eschewing of incendiary issues, Mr. Reynolds does not say. It is perhaps just as well, for the burning questions of the day seem to find their way to the White House, and whether the President tries to quench them with action or bottle them up in the hope that they will vanish of their own accord, the sparks continue to fly. The White House, to be sure, has withstood a lot of rafter-singeing in the past, but that is no guarantee that some day the whole place will not explode.

Joking apart, Mr. Reynolds has asked Congress for $50,000 to fireproof the Executive Mansion, and we think the money should be granted.

Russian Diplomacy

Apropos Lord Inverchapel's remarks, "Some Red Crises Are Only Bad Manners," in The Washington Post of April 25, it is rather amusing to note that diplomacy a la russe hasn't changed noticeably since Christopher Warszewicki, Polish nobleman and writer, a man of the world, keen observer of many people and interesting events, wrote his book on the Ambassador over 400 years ago, and among other things furnished "a list of ambassadors that Poland ought to send abroad, choosing them according to the habits and tastes of different countries," e. g.—

"To Moscow, send men prudent and sly, for they lead you by the nose for a long time in order to dupe you later, they haggle for a long time before coming to anything. To France, men of wit, supple and with a well-hung tongue; to England, imposing, majestic men, good to the eye, for the English love that, all the more so, as they well know and feel with sorrow, that these qualities are deficient in them."

"It is bad," said Warszewicki, "to present your arguments in a haughty, blustering, insolent, rude way; it is always clumsy."

Warszewicki would have been devilishly amused during most of the U. N. sessions, I'm sure. So terribly clumsy!

Health Insurance Plan

The National Health Assembly convening here May 1-4 is our last chance to eschew medical politics for intelligent planning. Organized medicine should concede the lack of social sufficiency of voluntary health insurance programs. Admittedly low-cost health security for preferred risks among the employed and solvent is not enough. A national definition of social justice demands that the unemployed, the poor risk, the aged sick and the catastrophe beyond average severity be included in a solvent insurance program. The contrary school of thought should accept the fact that American doctors will have none of a compulsory health insurance program patterned after the British panel system.

Both groups should unite to provide low-cost self-help against bankrupting health hazards. It should be a noncancellable, nonselective, prepayable plan based on sound insurance principles. The costs should be shared by all by spreading the risk to the shoulders of the entire Nation.

NHA first should define the Nation's social and humanitarian objective in respect to an immediate national health security insurance program. A minimal program should provide adequate insurance indemnity for child bearing, catastrophic illness and the malignancies and degenerative diseases of age.

Next NHA should estimate fair-cost formulas for the hospitalization and professional services required to implement their program. These fair national averages should not be subject to regional discounts or preferments. Similar professional services should receive identical compensation without any discrimination whatsoever. Hospitalization costs should include accurate national averages for minimal wages, maintenance, modernization, amortization and reserves. The cost-formula should be purposed to end deficit spending and stabilize occupational security and incentives for those servicing the healing arts.

Once authoritatively determined the fair-cost formula should be the national standard for all similar assessments and planning. The solvent should not be overcharged to pay for the insolvent. Neither should Government or private enterprise be permitted to contract for basic health security at less than its fair cost. The common burden should equitably be assessed without discrimination.

The final step should be the least controversial. Recognized insurance actuaries should balance the equation of fair costs with needed revenues and assessments. Much of the initial organization and research for this actuarial project is an accomplished fact. Blue Cross, Blue Shield, American Hospital Association and the AMA Council of Medical Services and Public Relations have cooperated with the Federal Security Agency in compiling authoritative data on the subject.

Contact By Letters

I feel that it would be a good thing for everyone if people of different nationalities could, by some means, be brought into closer contact with each other. This applies with particular force to peoples having such close ties as the English and the Americans.

A great deal has been accomplished in this respect by the printing press, the cinema and wireless broadcasting, but these all lack, in greater or lesser degree, the personal touch.

Travel would doubtless be the ideal way of getting to know each other better, but we cannot all be globe trotters. There is however, another medium that could be used to greater effect than is the case at present, with beneficial results. I refer to the written word. If only each family in Great Britain and America could, by some means, be induced to exchange letters even once a month, not only should we understand each others' point of view and way of life better, but much that now puzzles each about the other would be made clear.

"Carnival In Costa Rica"

It appears to me that an unfortunate impression may be taken from the first paragraph of your April 22 editorial, "Carnival in Costa Rica." While it is true that Costa Rica is one of the most thoroughly democratic states of the Western Hemisphere, and that she enjoyed an economic status substantially better than her neighbors, it would be mistaken to assume from those points that Costa Rica luxuriates in a high standard of living comparable to that of the United States. Costa Rica stands out only by comparison with the critically low standards of Latin America.

While the larger part of the population consists of highland farmers, approximately 90 per cent of pure white ancestry, about one quarter of the people live in the lowlands of the Pacific and Caribbean coasts and are largely of mixed Indian, Negro and white blood—on the Pacific side working on the large landed estates, on the Caribbean coast hiring out to North American fruit companies. (Preston E. James, Latin America, New York, 1942). It is among the lowland hired workers that the seeds of communism find most fertile ground, of course.

As for the standard of living, it may be noted that in 1938 there was one motor vehicle for every four persons in the United States—in Costa Rica the ratio was 1:180, in Cuba 1:92 (Communists!), and in Chile 1:104 (Communists!). Costa Rican dependence on foreign trade is shown by the fact that in 1940 the government derived almost one half of its revenues from customs receipts—Brazil, Chile, the Dominican Republic, Ecuador and Peru, less than one fourth. (Olson-Hickman, Pan American Economics, New York, 1943.)

So please don't lead your readers to assume that Costa Rica enjoys a high standard of living comparable to that of the United States, and help us keep our eye on the ball—not beating down the Communists, but rather building up the standards of living.

Atomic Commission Appointments

The news that reappointment of the present members of the Atomic Energy Commission is to be resisted in the Senate on lines of political partisanship is bad news for the people of the United States.

Under the law the five members of the commission are appointed by the President, subject to confirmation by the Senate. The terms of all five members will expire on August 1. The President has reappointed them, and the question now is whether the Senate will confirm.

We must assume that those opposing confirmation are unaware of the ominous risks that a disruption of the atomic energy program at this time would produce.

1. Our survival as a Nation may well depend on the intelligence, skill and vigor with which the atomic energy project is carried forward. Of all activities in the country there is none more vital to our safety than this activity. If a hostile power should get the lead on us in development of atomic energy, the future would be dark indeed.

2. How can the project be managed with intelligence, skill and vigor if we are now to have another complete turnover in management? The time that would be lost by such an interruption could never be made up later.

A review of the past three years will show that we have already lost too much time by reason of uncertainty as to management of the atomic energy project. The War Department, promptly after the bombs were dropped on Hiroshima and Nagasaki, came forward with a recommendation for legislation. It urged that the atomic energy project be placed under a new civilian agency of the Government. Nearly a year elapsed before the new law was passed. The new law did not depart in any substantial feature from the measure suggested by the War Department. The point is that for nearly a year the project was injured by doubt as to future policy and future prospects.

Months more were wasted last year in drawn-out and vituperative hearings before a Senate committee as to the fitness of the men appointed to the commission by the President. The hearings brought out nothing to indicate any degree of unfitness on their part. The members of the commission, instead of devoting their entire time to the atomic energy project, were obliged to spend their days at committee hearings. They were finally confirmed, but more valuable time was lost.

3. A case might be made out for a change in personnel of the commission if it appeared that the present members of the commission were less than competent. No such claim has been made, as far as I have heard. When I was Secretary of War I had frequent contacts with the members of the commission. I formed a most favorable opinion of them as to character and competence. They are doing an outstanding job in a post of extraordinary complexity and responsibility, serving their country capably and conscientiously and at great personal sacrifice.

The Atomic Energy Commission is too important a body to be the object of political pressure. The Nation cannot afford to have these posts treated as if they were in the patronage class.

Man Against The Beast

By Malvina Lindsay

New Tests For Leaders

SOME DAY perhaps when a man runs for office the public will ask among other things, "What is the state of his mental health? Is he prejudiced, uncontrolled, vindictive? Is he balanced, just, open-minded?" For the realization is growing that persons in key positions in public life, industry and the professions need above all to be emotionally fit to wield influence.

This emphasis on the whole man or woman is showing up particularly in two important professional fields, religion and education. One example is the recent action of the Presbytery of Washington, D. C., in requiring that future candidates for church posts in this area meet psychological tests to determine their personal fitness for their work. As the first step of its kind by a presbytery, this reflects a growing trend toward more careful selection of religious leaders.

Teachers also are being evaluated more on human qualities, less on degrees, IQ's and technical skill. For it is recognized that emotionally maladjusted teachers may wreak their frustrations and hostilities on their pupils. In the campaign now being made to obtain elementary school teachers for the hundreds of thousands of war babies entering school, personal qualities are being emphasized. Above all, teachers who like children and who inspire their trust are wanted since the personal relationship of teachers and pupil may have tremendous effect on the child's later life. A recently completed four-year study of juvenile delinquency, sponsored by the New York Board of Education, stresses the personality of the teacher as the most important influence in handling or preventing delinquency in children.

INDUSTRY and business have already done much in the personality field as a means of increasing efficiency and improving labor relations. But little has been done along this line in Government, diplomacy, international relations. True, voters often select officials for personal qualities, but this is done superficially, and frequently under spell of unhealthy emotion. Hitler, for example, had an effective campaign personality.

In diplomacy of course there is much superficial attention to personality. But here, as in teaching, there has usually been more emphasis on intellectual or technical competence or else on experience, background, connections, than on the well-rounded, healthy-minded personality.

Nor have the services of psychiatrists, psychologists, anthropologists, other authorities on human beings, been used sufficiently in appraising and handling international problems, though these nearly always involve human behavior. Both the United Nations and the American State Department could well use psychiatrists as trouble shooters, also as advisers. Admiral Ellis M. Zacharias, wartime naval intelligence expert, recently pointed out that lack of psychological appraisal of the situation at Bogota contributed to the trouble that developed there.

THE RECENTLY published diaries of Dr. Joseph Goebbels, chief Nazi propagandist, give shocking evidence of how diseased and evil may be the mind of a man in a position of great power. As appraisers of the diaries point out, Goebbels was able and clever, but he also revealed himself as vain, spiteful, hypocritical, and without moral values. Most serious of all, he despised people.

But keeping the emotionally warped out of places of influence is not enough. Whole men and women must be developed to fill these posts. One interesting project for this purpose has been started at Dakota Wesleyan University, at Mitchell, S. Dak. Its methods, based on 10 years of research that began with a group of students at the University of Wisconsin, include much individual guidance, and scientific testing, also study and application of spiritual law. The program aims to develop human beings of balance, insight, imagination and integrated personality, who are trained scientifically to help the world meet its greatest problem—human adjustment.

Throughout the world there is dawning effort on the part of man to take himself in hand with the aid of modern scientific and religious techniques—one expression of which is the International Congress for Mental Health meeting in London in August. After a century of serving the great god, Technology, people are groping for a means to give life more personal, social and spiritual balance. But it is a contest with time.

Long Street-Dresses

The new style of wearing long street dresses is absurd. It is neither practical or becoming, nor is it stylish or intelligent.

A woman doesn't look smart for when she sits down on a streetcar or bus there is the circular, long skirt sagging on the floor to get the hem dusty. She definitely does not look nineteen-forty-eighth, the era of jet planes and television.

I do not like the extreme short dresses but there is a normal spot half way down the calf of the leg which makes a girl's suit skirt look swanky and lets her have a bit of dash and not look droopy. By all means let us keep the graceful, sweeping long skirts for evening.

Today And Tomorrow

By Walter Lippmann

Military Guesswork

IN A VALIANT effort to make intelligible what the Army and Navy Register has called a "welter of confused recommendations" Mr. Hanson W. Baldwin mentioned uncertainty as to whether the emergency, which Mr. Truman described in his St. Patrick's Day message, is "short term or long term." This is, I think, the chief explanation of the Forrestal-Symington, the air force-U. M. T.-draft controversy and confusion.

Lippmann

THE PENTAGON, having received no clear directive from the President as to whether to prepare for a near or a distant military showdown, finds itself trying to guess what the Russians intend to do. But since the Pentagon cannot be sure that it is guessing right, it is but natural that it should be divided and confused.

So Mr. Symington and his constituents in the House of Representatives want to prepare for war in 1952, the theoretical date when they have decided to think the Russians will have atomic bombs. The orthodox sponsors of the U. M. T. are also trying to get ready for a theoretical war several years hence. Mr. Forrestal is trying to "balance" the conflicting pressures (so far as one can judge) on the theory that we ought to prepare a little for all the different possibilities.

BUT IF WE ask ourselves why we have been discussing extra military measures since the middle of March, the answer must surely be that in the judgment of the Administration there has been a change in the international situation since the events in Czechoslovakia, Finland, Berlin and Vienna. This was also the judgment of the western powers of Europe; otherwise they would not so hastily have signed the Brussels alliance.

What does this all add up to? It adds up to the judgment that the emergency is now and near —that this is the critical period, that if there is to be a showdown it will not be when Mr. Symington has the perfect jet-propelled air force of 1952, and when the U. M. T. enthusiasts have a great trained reserve some years hence, and when Great Britain and France have recovered under the Marshall Plan and are rearmed in the distant future.

IF ALL THE governments of western Europe and our own have not been having an unnecessary fit of nerves, this is in truth the critical period. What will count is the military power which can be mobilized at once, and deployed at once, so that there may be a force in being. Our paramount need, then, is not "preparedness" for a theoretical M-Day but a mobilization of what we have and can quickly produce.

THAT THIS IS the critical period might have been debatable before the Truman message and the Brussels pact. It is not debatable now. For while it could have been argued in March, though wrongly it seems to me, that the Czechoslovakian and Finnish actions were merely the cold war and not the opening of a military phase, our own actions—whatever the original Russian intentions — have changed the situation. Our decision to rearm and to support a military alliance in Europe would be in the highest degree reckless and irresponsible if we did not now act on the assumption that the Russians will do something drastic before a long program of rearmament can be completed.

It is simply inconceivable that they will remain passive, waging only a cold war, while Mr. Symington gets ready to exterminate them with atomic bombs in 1952. Therefore, the adoption of his program under present circumstances would on any prudent calculation provoke countermeasures for which, having invested everything in the Symington program and Symington strategy, we should be unprepared.

It is not safe to threaten Russia with destruction in 1952, leaving Europe undefended in the meantime. The only safe and wise thing to do is to mobilize at once a defensive and a deterrent force for the support of Europe.

IF WE DECIDE to do that, the welter of confused recommendations from the Pentagon may be replaced by a coherent military program. With such a program the State Department will be in a position to clarify its own policies. It will be able to give the Western Union the only kind of guaranty that means anything—a guaranty that we are determined to defend it against invasion.

The State Department will also be in a position to be firm with Russia without appearing provocative to all Russians and to most Europeans. For it will then be able to say concretely to the Kremlin that we are preparing for war if they attack but that we are not preparing to attack them—that we are redressing the balance of power which is upset because they are in the middle of a defenseless continent; and that on the basis of this defensive military stalemate we look forward eventually to a negotiated settlement, not to a war, in which Europe will become the buffer between us, not the battlefields on which all of us destroy each other.

Off The Record

Washington Calling

By Marquis Childs

VISITORS WHO have talked recently with President Truman have come away with the impression of a man who has undergone an important change. He has a new outlook on life and, above all, on his job.

Childs

The President today is a man with a mission. He tells his visitors that he must meet the Russian challenge.

"I can't run away now," he says quietly. I must stay here and see this through."

The doubts and uncertainties of the past are resolved. The change began to be noticeable at the time the President made his speech to Congress calling for a renewal of the draft and for universal military training. Events since then have confirmed the change in his attitude.

The grumblings and complaints about the lack of cooperation from Congress, so frequent in the past, are rarely heard today. Mr. Truman is the good soldier, standing firm at his post, conscious of his responsibility to the future.

There may be in this the stubbornness which is an important part of the President's character. But of political guile, or at least conscious political guile, there seems to be none at all. Having resolved his doubts, the President seems relieved and at peace with himself.

THIS STRIKING change has, of course, a direct bearing on the Democratic convention in Philadelphia, now less than three months distant. It is a reality which is likely to thwart the plans of the busy schemers who want to sidetrack Mr. Truman for Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower or Justice William O. Douglas.

They have cherished the hope that Mr. Truman would voluntarily step out on the eve of the convention if he saw within his own party an overwhelming demand for a substitute. Meanwhile they are hard at work trying to make sure that such a demand will sweep the party.

For Mr. Truman to step aside voluntarily is one thing. The skids would be greased with warm praise of his gallant effort in an office which he had not wanted from the outset.

To push aside Mr. Truman, the good soldier determined to stick to his post, is quite another matter. This would call for a brutal use of the ax in full public view, and it is most unlikely to happen.

Veterans in the party have always been skeptical of the move to shove the President aside. They have considered it amateurish and naive. Now they are beginning to foster the first faint renewal of hope that perhaps Mr. Truman can be reelected.

This tiny flame flickering in the ashes of despair is based in part on the issue of inflation. A sudden new upward sweep in prices is possible and, some observers believe, even probable. A kind of flash burn running through the economy and searing millions of low and moderate-income families in September and October could be decisive. The President, so the argument goes, could unload the blame for this flash burn on the Republicans.

REPUBLICAN majorities are in command of both houses of Congress. Repeatedly the President has called for minimum controls to check inflation. Again and again Congress has ignored the President's plea. Instead of imposing controls, the Republican majorities cut out nearly five billion dollars in tax revenue, making it likely that defense spending will create a new deficit.

This is the score that the President will read out in his campaign for reelection in the fall. The reaction of the voters could be quite different from what it was in 1946, when the Administration got the blame for scarcities and rising prices.

In the President's changed attitude is one of the deep ironies of our curious civilization. Frustrated in almost everything he has tried to do on the domestic side, it took a threat of war to create in him a firm resolve and a new determination.

Long ago America's foremost philosopher, William James, wrote a searching essay calling for a "moral equivalent for war." He called for something that would galvanize men's energies and unify their actions as, seemingly, only war does. The need for that equivalent is far more urgent now than in the time of James, since man has invented infinitely more deadly weapons.

Probers Put Oil Overcharge At 30 Million

By Marshall Andrews
Post Reporter

The Navy was overcharged 30 million dollars on oil it needed to carry on the war, the Senate War Investigating Committee declared yesterday.

It blamed the Arabian American Oil Co., which promptly denied it had taken advantage of the Navy's critical position during the war. In fact, said the company, it had saved the Navy 26½ million dollars and "the benefits to the Nation's economy . . . have only just begun."

Committee and company, however, agreed on one point. That was that the Arabian oil fields probably would be valueless to the United States in case of war with Russia.

Committee Chairman Brewster (R., Me.) told a news conference yesterday that his committee had recommended an inquiry by the Department of Justice to determine whether the Arabian operation is a violation of the anti-trust laws. The Arabian American firm, known as Aramco, is pointly owned by the Standard Oil Companies of New Jersey and California, the Texas Oil Co., and Socony Vacuum.

The committee blamed Aramco's "avaricious desire for enormous profits" together with Government "lack of responsibility" for the overcharging it said existed. Although Aramco agreed to sell fuel oil to the Navy at 40 cents a barrel, the committee said, on condition that the government aid the Saudi Arabian King, it actually sold this oil at $1.05 a barrel while the U. S. was advancing $99,469,000 to the King. The committee said 51 millions of this amount was indirect and made through the British government and that 27 millions more was "recoverable."

Aramco retorted that the United States gave King Ibn Saud's government only 18 million dollars in direct lend-lease aid and "did not commence that aid until the worst of Saudi Arabia's war peril was over." The company itself, it added, advanced nearly 16 million dollars to Ibn Saud.

Navy Secretary John L. Sullivan later issued a statement defending the Middle Eastern oil purchases. He asserted that the Navy bought the oil for 79 cents a barrel less than it would have had to pay in the United States or to the Dutch West Indies and that it is still buying from Arabian-American at $1.05.

He denied that the Navy ever received an "unconditional" offer of oil from the company at 40 cents a barrel.

"The alleged offer of 40 cents a barrel," he said, "was expressly conditioned upon an advance of 30 million dollars being made to the King of Saudi Arabia, to which neither the Navy nor any other agency of the Government was authorized to commit itself."

Senator Langer (R., N. Dak.) applauded work of the committee on the Senate floor and praised Brewster for "a magnificent job." Brewster, he said, had been treated "unfairly" by newspapers during the last year or so.

In its report, the committee castigated the oil companies for "a singular lack of good faith, an avaricious desire for enormous profits, while at the same time they constantly sought the cloak of United States protection and financial assistance to preserve their vast concessions."

Field Has Interest

Lawyer, Newsman Acquire PM

New York, April 28 (AP).—Marshall Field 3d, announced tonight the sale of a controlling interest in the newspaper PM to Bartley Crum, attorney, and Joseph Barnes, foreign editor of the New York Herald Tribune.

Field said he would retain a minority interest.

The arrangements were indorsed by the PM unit of the New York Newspaper Guild (CIO).

Financial terms were not disclosed.

Field's control of the paper will end April 30.

Crum, a San Francisco attorney, formerly was a member of the Anglo-American Committee of inquiry on Palestine.

Crum also is associated with Robert W. Kenny of Los Angeles in representing a group of motion picture figures opposing the House Committee on Un-American Activities in its investigation of Hollywood.

Barnes and Crum said there would be no immediate changes in PM.'s staff or policies.

House Gets Price Curb Bill

Representative Helen Gahagan Douglas (D., Calif.) reported to the House last night that prices are still going up.

She carried to the floor a basket of groceries she bought last week. A year ago she bought the same items for $15.02. This week they cost her $16.23. In 1946, during OPA, she said, they cost only $10.08.

Warning that "we are willing to spend billions to stop Communism abroad, but no nothing to stop the conditions that will breed it here," Mrs. Douglas introduced in the House the Thomas-Wagner price control bill.

This would freeze all prices at their January, 1948, levels, but exempt luxury items and those in plentiful supply.

Mrs. Douglas' grocery basket contained these items, for which she gave the price comparisons shown:

	OPA	Last year	Today prices prevailed at store
10 lbs. Flour (Pillsbury)	.78	.97	.99
1 lb. Butter (Land O'Lakes)	.65	.83	.93
2 qts. Lucerne Milk	.29	.34	.33
1 doz. Eggs (Cream Crop)	.53	.69	.69
2 lbs. Sunsweet Dried Prunes	.32	.54	.38
3 lbs. Round Steak	1.35	2.07	2.76

Net of Texaco Rises 45% in First Quarter

By S. Oliver Goodman

Typical of the oil industry's sharp upturn in earnings is the first quarter report of the Texas Co., which showed net of $27,974,839 or $2.08 a common share. This compared with $18,582,445 or $1.65 a share in the like 1947 period.

Rodgers

W. S. S. Rodgers, Texaco chairman, in releasing the figures, commented: "At first glance, these earnings may appear to be large. However, today the company is spending far more for properties, plant and equipment than it is earning. If the company's own production of crude oil and property depreciation charges were based on current replacement costs, resulting operating charges would be materially larger and earnings would be correspondingly reduced."

Rodgers pointed out that the United States today is using more petroleum products than the whole world used in 1936. He estimated 1948 demand at 7.2 per cent over 1947 and said the oil industry will "approximately meet this demand but there may be local spot shortages due to not having the right product at the right place when required."

Other petroleum firms recently reported first quarter share nets compared with 1947 as follows: Gulf Oil $3.39 against $1.73; Phillips Petroleum $3.00 against $1.26; Skelly Oil $9.13 against $2.98; Lion Oil $2.55 against $1.15; Plymouth Oil $1.60 against 65 cents.

MOVING UP: The First Federal Savings & Loan Association, Washington, is the twenty-third largest in the Nation with year-end assets of $32,505,902, according to a compilation by The Investment Dealers Digest. As of mid-1947, First Federal's rank was twenty-seventh with assets of 27 million. Perpetual Building Association, Washington, is the largest in the Nation.

Oils and Rails Again Strong In Mixed List

New York, April 28 (AP).—Individual favorites, mostly oils and rails, propped a wobbly stock market today.

Price changes in either direction were held mostly to a point or less, but at the end of the day the list was irregularly higher.

The Associated Press 60-stock average moved up .1 of a point to 67.3, equalling Tuesday's narrow climb.

Caution was the prevailing sentiment as the volume of transactions dropped to 1,400,000 shares, lightest since April 14. It was the nineteenth day this month that sales topped a million shares, and compared with 1,420,000 yesterday.

Petroleum shares benefited from continued reports of favorable first quarter results and optimistic forecasts. Rails more or less ignored the threat of some of the operating unions to begin a Nation-wide strike May 11. This action drew attention to possibility of strikes in some other industries, such as automobiles.

Skelly Oil jumped to a new 1948 high and closed up 3 at 143. Gulf Oil climbed 2⅛ at 71. Others with sizable gains included Standard Oil (N. J.) at 81½, Plymouth Oil, 69¼; Mission Corp., 64¼; Rock Island, 34⅜; Santa Fe, 106; Atlantic Coast Line, 55; Studebaker, 23; American Smelting, 58; International Paper, 56, and Public Service of New Jersey, 23¾.

WHAT ARE YOUR STOCKS REALLY WORTH?
"Nobody can tell you. Oh sure, you can get the current market price in a minute. But that doesn't mean anything."
It was a banker talking to a friend at his luncheon club.
"You see," he went on "investment values are always comparative. What your stock is worth depends on how much more you might make by investing the same amount of money in some other stock. And when you consider how many of these 'other' stocks there are . . . well, you can see why there isn't any absolute answer to your question."
No there isn't any absolute answer. The banker is right.
Yet every investor has got to find some kind of an answer—as nearly correct as possible in the midst of all these changing values.
It's our job, as we see it, to help him by supplying as much fundamental information as we can about prospects for hundreds of different companies.
Some of that information is in printed pamphlets and reports. But the great bulk of it can't wait on the printing press. It's news. It's urgent. It's vital, particularly in a period of change like the present.
So that's why we have a private news wire that does nothing but feed a steady stream of bulletins eight hours a day to all our 97 offices. And those bulletins are supplemented by mimeographed reports on the more important developments.
For instance, just in the past few days we have covered news affecting investment values in the following companies:

Filer of K-F Suit Refuses Data to SEC

By the Associated Press

The lawyer who filed a suit to halt the proposed sale of 10 million dollars in Kaiser-Frazer stock said yesterday he did it because he feared the new issue would reduce the value of outstanding stock, of which he held 300 shares.

But James F. Masterson, the Philadelphia attorney, would not tell the Securities and Exchange Commission about some matters connected with his court action.

The SEC is investigating the withdrawal of Otis & Co., Cleveland, and the First California Co., San Francisco, from a contract to sell 900,000 shares of K-F stock for $13 each in February.

The contract had a provision that enabled the banking firms to withdraw if a material lawsuit was filed against the motor firm by February 9. On the morning of that day Masterson filed a suit in Detroit against Kaiser-Frazer, alleging the company's financial position had been impaired.

A Kaiser-Frazer attorney has called the suit a "phony." Otis & Co. witnesses have testified the banking firm had nothing to do with the suit, and had no knowledge of it before it was filed.

Masterson declined to testify on some points yesterday on the grounds that his talks and communications with David V. Martin, Detroit attorney, were confidential.

A new angle in the long drawn out investigation was indicated Tuesday when Senator Tobey (R., N. H.) of the Senate Banking Committee said there might be a congressional inquiry into the stock case.

He said that depends on how the SEC answers 20 questions he has submitted. He said there is a strong possibility that the SEC itself is not free of responsibility and that the public should know.

An SEC official said the commission had no comment on Tobey's letter asking answers to his questions and how it handled the stock sale agreement, and later the investigation.

Chicago Grain

Chicago, April 28 (AP).—Threat of a railroad strike threw a scare into shorts in May contracts on the Board of Trade today. May deliveries of all grains soared good gains, giving a lesser boost to later months.

Also supporting the market were trade rumors confirmed after the close that the Government had re-entered the flour market on the Pacific Coast. A firm demand for cash grain, a hike in the Government wheat buying price and lack of moisture in the Southwest helped along the advance.

Wheat closed 2 to 4¼ higher, May, 2.44¾@2.45; corn was 1¾ to 3¾ higher, May, 2.21@2.21½; oats were ½ to 2½ higher, May, 1.10¾@1.10½, and soybeans were 8 cents higher, May, 4.08.

Business Outlook

Buyers Won't Strike Now, Dean Tells U. S. Chamber

By J. A. Livingston

ALWAYS at an annual meeting of the U. S. Chamber of Commerce you can count on at least one thought-provoking talk which makes the trip to Washington worth while. Joel Dean, professor of business economics at Columbia University, came forth with it this year.

Livingston

Dean belies his 41 years. He seems older, wiser, and has an unexpected backlog of experience, including being a salesman for International Business Machines Corp., doing management consulting for McKinsey & Co., running fuel rationing for OPA during the war, teaching at Indiana and Chicago, working with the National Bureau of Economic Research, and writing several books.

"Most companies," Dean declared, "know little about how prices affect sales volume." A change in price often is obscured by how much or how little the company spends on advertising; or by modifications in the character of the product; or, and far more important, by a rise or fall in consumer purchasing power.

SOME COMPANIES are trying to learn, though. They're conducting price experiments. Simmons Co. put on retail display identical mattresses one bearing its brand name and one with an unadvertised name. At the same price, Simmons outsold the unknown brand 15 to 1. When the unknown mattress was $5 cheaper, the Simmons brand was an 8-to-1 favorite. But when the price differential was 25%, sales were equal. A parallel experiment with Cannon towels produced similar results.

Businessmen are too self-centered. They ought to look at prices through the buyers' eyes instead of their own. It's a gross misconception, says Dean, for a manufacturer to think that if he raises his prices strictly in line with increases in his costs, buyers will be satisfied. Changes in the buyers' own costs are much more apt to determine his attitude. If his costs are up only 10 per cent, and a seller boosts prices 25 per cent, the buyer will feel sure he's being gouged.

Dean pooh-poohed the idea of a buyers' strike now. A particular company or industry may price itself out of the market. But a "genuine sitdown strike by buyers is illogical" during a period of rising prices. People will stop buying only when they expect price declines, not when they think prices will go higher.

DEAN SAID that businessmen are apt to be slaves to prewar break-even points. Just because a company made money in the '30s or the '20s at a 60 per cent rate of operations, it doesn't follow that it must set its prices so that it will make a profit if operations drop to those levels. In a high-production, full-employment economy, business can expect better operating levels and consequently can afford lower profit margins and higher wage rates.

Dean advised businessmen to establish prices which allow for higher costs of inventory and plant replacement. It is essential to make a forecast of costs, so that companies avoid (a) selling at what seems like a profit but is really a loss and (b) haphazard price changes first up, then down. Frequent price adjustments nettle customers, often result in a loss of confidence.

DEAN DOUBTS that the business community or the American people really want to stop inflation. "To be sure people oppose it as they oppose sin." But they find the process pleasurable. "It would be hard to pick a worse time for the [recent] tax cut."

Dean said the only way to avoid peacetime price, production and rationing controls is to "get out and work for a buyers' market." Businessmen must try to persuade business associates, customers and everybody else that we must have proper fiscal and monetary controls. We must have a budgetary surplus; we have to cut down Federal expenditures; we have to prevent undue credit expansion by banks. Dean's paper doesn't make easy reading. But many a businessman will find ideas in it applicable to his own business.

Modernized Monroe Doctrine Urged to Fight Communism

A call for an atomic age "modernization" of the Monroe Doctrine by which the United States would fight Communist aggression everywhere, was sounded last night before the United States Chamber of Commerce, in convention here.

Representative Karl E. Mundt (R., S. Dak.), member of the House Foreign Affairs Committee, speaking at a Shoreham Hotel dinner, declared:

"The Monroe Doctrine of 1823 should be expanded and rephrased to become the American Doctrine of 1948.

"This new American Doctrine should make it clear that this country looks upon the aggressive acts of communism as inimical to our national interest.

"We should state in clearcut language that we propose to resist its advances and to aid and encourage those who defend themselves against it as part of our own national defense program."

Earlier in the day Senator Styles Bridges (R., N. H.), chairman of the Senate Appropriations Committee, warned:

"We are skating on such thin ice economically that even a slight recession would throw our Government into deficit spending in 1949."

Bridges said the personal incomes of all Americans are now running at an annual level of about 210 billion dollars, from which the Government expects to collect 42.4 billions under the new lower tax schedules. That will cover Federal expenditures for fiscal 1949 with about two billion to spare, Bridges said.

But a drop of 20 billion dollars in personal income—or 10 per cent of the present figure—would push the Government deeply into the red, the Appropriations chief warned.

Dr. Donald H. McLaughlin, president, Homestake Mining Co., San Francisco, urged the Government to go abroad to get stockpiles of vital ores and metals which are "dangerously low." Efforts to stockpile domestic ores would prove "woefully inadequate," he declared.

Jay D. Runkle of Detroit, board chairman of the National Retail Dry Goods Association, told the luncheon session that a war scare "discovered by the Administration" has given inflation "another shot in the arm."

He said:

"It was pretty evident that there were some badly scared politicians in Washington early this year who were afraid that prices may actually be reduced and bring about deflation.

"The war scare fixed that up for those who were anxious to ride the bandwagon to victory in November . . . No one seems to want to kill Santa Claus just before election."

Runkle charged that the politicians are again "out in fully cry for controls" which, he said, would "stifle our economy, restrict production and create black markets."

The 3000 delegates, representing 2918 federated business organizations and more than 1,245,000 members, last night drew up the national chamber's declarations of policy. Among the declarations were the following:

1. Support of a strong national security program, including universal military training, temporary selective service, "mobilization of all segments of the national economy, strengthening of the armed forces, "expansion of our air power." Costs to be met "within the economic and financial strength of the Nation."

2. "An equal educational opportunity, of an extent and type considered essential by education authorities, is the birthright of every child in each State in the Union." Business should stimulate the finding of funds for increasing and expanding educational effort.

3. Social security, however desirable and necessary, "is no substitute for productive employment."

4. Congressional investigation and the resultant publicity has been "especially effective" in counteracting subversive propaganda and activity in the United States."

5. Business must have insurance to protect its investments and credits.

6. "The need for the initiative of private enterprise is nowhere more apparent than in the exploration and development of mineral resources."

7. Indorsement of the principle "that a greater production and wider distribution of goods at lower prices will improve the level of world prosperity and promote a gradually rising world standard of living.

8. "The principles of nondiscriminatory multilateral economic relations is the basis of the foreign economic policy of the United States."

9. The Federal Reserve System's "inherent strength was demonstrated in the financing of enormous war costs." "Special vigilance" is needed to safeguard the essential principles of the system against moves toward "socilization of banking and credit, or a managed economy."

10. Congress should give recognition to State ownership and disposition of all lands beneath the navigable waters within the States.

11. Extension of the Trade Agreements Act, modified somewhat, is strongly favored.

12. This country should accept a reasonable number of dislaced persons over the next four years.

13. The Territory of Hawaii should be admitted as a State of the Union.

Robertson Qualifies As Nominee Candidate

Richmond, Va., April 28 (AP).—United States Senator A. Willis Robertson of Lexington today completed steps necessary to qualify him as candidate for renomination in the August 3 Democratic Primary.

Copies of Robertson's qualification papers were received by Levin Nock Davis, secretary of the State Board of Elections. The originals, with petitions signed by more than 500 qualified voters, were filed with State Democratic Chairman Horace H. Edwards.

New Engineer Center Chief Named at Belvoir

The Army said yesterday that Maj. Gen. Douglas L. Weart, now Ohio River Division Engineer, will become commander of the Engineers Center at Fort Belvoir, Va., about May 17. No announcement was made of General Weart's successor.

Dollar Sales Up, Unit Total Off in Period

Because of price increases retail stores took in more money but sold less merchandise in the first quarter of 1948 than in the last quarter of 1947.

A Commerce Department report yesterday estimated retail sales of $10,475,000,000 in March, or 13 per cent above March of last year.

But the report added:

"Since prices, except for foods, have been moving slowly upward, a slight decline in unit volume of sales from the level of the fourth quarter is thus indicated."

March sales were $1,558,000,000 above February, a gain of only two points on the department's index of retail sales.

Automobile sales made a 6 per cent gain and a new high, but sales of home furnishings and building material, and hardware stores decline 3 and 1 per cent, respectively.

IF STOMACH BALKS DUE TO GAS AND BLOAT
Help Get Food Digested to Relieve Yourself of This Nervous Distress
Do you feel all puffed-up and miserable after every meal, taste sour, bitter food? If so, here is how you may get blessed relief in helping your stomach do the job—it should be doing—in the digestion of its food.
Every time food enters the stomach a vital gastric juice must flow normally to break up certain food particles; else the food may ferment. Sour food, acid indigestion and gas frequently cause a shocked, touchy, fretful, peevish, nervous condition, loss of appetite, underweight, restless sleep, weakness.
To get real relief you must increase the flow of this vital gastric juice. Medical authorities, in independent laboratory tests on human stomachs, have by positive proof shown that BEG Tonic is amazingly effective in increasing this flow when it is too little or scanty due to a non-organic stomach disturbance. This is due to the BEG Tonic formula which contains special and potent activating ingredients.
Also, BEG Tonic helps build-up non-organic, weak, watery blood in nutritional anemia—so with a good flow of this gastric digestive juice, plus rich red blood you should eat better, sleep better, feel better, work better, play better.
Avoid punishing yourself with overdoses of soda and other alkalizers to counteract gas and bloating when what you so dearly need is BEG Tonic to help you digest food for body strength and repair. Don't wait! Join the host of happy people BEG Tonic has helped. Millions of bottles sold. Get a bottle of BEG Tonic from your drug store today. BEG Tonic helps Build Sturdy Health.

Girl's Mother Says Wiley Told Her of Marriage Plans

Mrs. Mae Nowicki wept briefly in District Court yesterday as she testified in support of her daughter's claim that Harvey W. Wiley, jr., breached his promise of marriage.

Her lips trembling, Mrs. Nowicki told of the "darling little boy" who, Camille Nowicki, 34, claims, is Wiley's son. Miss Nowicki is suing for $150,000.

The plump, dark-haired woman, obviously distraught, testified that Wiley, 36, assured her he planned to marry auburn-haired Camille, a congressional secretary, after she surprised the two of them in a "compromising" situation.

On December 21, 1943, when she claims she walked in on a romantic interlude at her apartments, 1741 Lanier pl. nw., Mrs. Nowicki testified Wiley, son of the late pure food champion, told her:

"Don't get excited Mrs. Nowicki . . . it isn't as bad as it looks. We've been engaged since last August . . . we intended to keep it a secret because we had a hard time getting an apartment."

Mrs. Nowicki said she "berated" her daughter and told Wiley that "regardless of whether you're getting married or not, I don't want to see this happen again."

Mrs. Nowicki, a Labor Department employe for five years, said they "were always stressing the secrecy of their engagement . . . that was one part I didn't like."

Mrs. Arlene Conrad, 1831 Summit pl. nw., Miss Nowicki's sister, testified Wiley had been a guest at her home on numerous occasions, including an Easter Sunday party in 1941. During a visit on January 5, 1946, she said, her sister and Wiley divulged their plans to be married.

"I asked Wiley where," Mrs. Conrad said. "He said they had been keeping it secret since August and they wanted to get married quietly."

She later described a visit which she says she made to the home of Mrs. Wiley, active clubwoman and crusader for women's rights. That, she said, was after Wiley had jilted her sister.

"Mrs. Wiley said to keep her out of it—that Camille's child was no concern of hers," Mrs. Conrad declared. "I said it really was her concern because Harvey was the father of the unborn child."

Wiley, she said, suggested that they "name the child Wiley, I don't care," but his mother told them:

"I'm afraid you will have to find someone else to be the father of your child."

During the conversation, Mrs. Conrad said, Wiley "said the best thing for Camille to do would be to have an abortion . . . I said nothing doing . . . that's plain murder."

"Mrs. Wiley came over," Mrs. Conrad continued, "and said, 'Who's talking about abortion?' I said, 'Your son is.' She said, 'No one would suggest such a thing.'"

Miss Ann Kasner, 1844 Columbia rd. nw., a General Accounting Office passenger specialist and close friend of the Nowickis, substantiated the previous testimony.

Earlier, intensive cross-examination of Miss Nowicki failed to shake her testimony that Wiley promised to marry her and is the father of her 20-month-old son, Timothy Wiley. She claimed that Wiley, whose father was chiefly responsible for the present pure foot and drug laws, told her he purchased a taxicab "solely for the purpose of getting more gasoline and tires for his car."

Wiley, once known as the "best fed child in the world," is scheduled to testify today shortly after the hearing is resumed at 10 a. m. before Justice Jennings Bailey.

Alcoholic Beverage Sales Drop in Virginia

Richmond, Va., April 28 (AP).—Gross sales of alcoholic beverages by Virginia's retail liquor stores declined by $1,408,248, or 6.23 per cent, for the first quarter of 1948 compared with the same period last year, State officials reported today.

The falling-off was seen by Alcoholic Beverage Control Board officials as apparently the beginning of the decreased buying demand anticipated since the end of the war and the shrinking of the wartime temporary population.

This year's liquor sales for January-February-March were $21,195,741, against $22,603,990 last year for the same months, ABC officials reported.

Virginia U. Astronomer Wins Scientific Prize

Charlottesville, Va., April 28 (AP).—Samuel Alfred Mitchell, University of Virginia retired professor of astronomy, tonight received the Resident and Visitors Research Prize presented each year for the best scientific paper published by a faculty member during the previous 12 months.

The presentation was made at the annual meeting of Sigma Xi honorary scientific society. Mitchell's paper was based on his studies of total eclipses of the sun, made while serving as director of Leander McCormick Observatory here.

J. E. Gardner to Seek Nomination for Congress

Richmond, Va., April 28 (AP).—J. E. Gardner, a Richmond businessman, announced today he will seek the Democratic nomination for the House of Representatives in the Third Congressional District.

Gardner's declaration assures at least a two-day contest in the August 3 Democratic primary. The incumbent, Representative J. Vaughan Gary, already has qualified to run for another term.

36 Comic Books Banned in Detroit As 'Corrupting'

Detroit, April 28 (AP).—Detroit officials today banned the sale of 36 comic books on citw newsstands.

Censors termed the books corrupting to youth. Prosecutor James N. McNally said failure to abide by the ban would be punished as a misdemeanor.

Nineteen other comics were listed as partially objectionable and 10 as questionable. "Publishers of partially objectionable books will be notified and asked to clean them up," McNally said.

The prosecutor listed the following types as objectionable:

1. Those planning or perpetrating a crime.

2. Those involving a youth in crime.

3. Entire comic dealing with crime or criminal deeds.

4. Those portraying gruesome or brutal conduct on women, children or race.

DC-6 Carrying 48 Forced Down by Fire

Cleveland, April 28 (U.P.).—An American Airlines DC-6 with 48 passengers aboard made an emergency landing here today with one of its four engines afire.

The Douglas DC-6 was the type of plane grounded more than six months ago by the CAA because of mysterious fires that broke out in the body of the planes.

The CAA lifted a ban on DC-6's on March 15.

The plane was on a flight from Chicago to New York.

F. G. Malbeuf, local AA manager, said the fire was due to "defective engine control," and not of the same type that brought the grounding order.

Death Listed as Suicide

Martinsburg, W. Va., April 28 (AP).—State police said today the death of Mrs. Sara Elizabeth Spalding, 60, found dead in her bed yesterday, will be listed as a suicide. She died from a bullet wound in the head.

Presbyterians to Review Lana Turner's Marriage

Los Angeles, April 28 (U.P.).—Lana Turner's marriage to Bob Topping three days after his divorce will be reviewed by the Los Angeles Presbytery, it was announced today.

The investigation resulted from a resolution passed by the Buffalo-Niagara Presbytery expressing regret that a minister of their church would officiate at a wedding performed contrary to church regulation, which require a year's wait after divorce.

The ceremony was performed by Rev. Stewart P. MacLennan, retired pastor of the First Presbyterian church of Hollywood.

Presbyterians See Callousness Trend

Atlanta Parley Is Told Lawlessness, Dulling Service of God, Pervade South

Atlanta, April 28 (AP).—Southern Presbyterians turned a critical eye on their own backyards today and found a battle-ground in the world-wide conflict between materialism and spiritualism.

The executive committee of home missions of the general assembly of the Presbyterian Church in the United States said:

"Material prosperity does not automatically produce a deepening spirituality. The pursuit of prosperity often dulls our sense of God and makes us callous toward our neighbors."

Such a trend, the committee reported is obvious in the South.

The committee in a report prepared for the eighty-eighth session of the general assembly here May 27-June 1, commented:

"Lawlessness is becoming one of the best known characteristics of the American way of life and this is all too true of the section in which our church is at work."

This section contains the South from Maryland to Texas.

Bishop Hits 'Holy War'

it clear to labor leaders that "we are not seeking to infiltrate and to control. That we are seeking solely to contribute in terms of character the finest young people . . ."

Christian Reunion Urged

He also called for a reunion of Christendom. But, he said, "it can never be achieved by one part of the Holy Catholic Church insisting that all other parts shall deny their Christian convictions and . . . discard their creative contributions to return . . ."

Bishop Oxnam envisioned an eventual union of Protestantism with the Eastern Orthodox churches. Then, he said, when the world's Christmas "belong to but two great churches," there might be formed the "Holy Catholic church to which all Christians may belong."

Laborite Expelled For Support of Nenni in Campaign

London, April 28 (AP).—John Platts-Mills was expelled from the Labor Party today as the upshot of a message wishing success to Pietro Nenni and his pro-Communist Socialists in the Italian election.

Twenty-one other Labor members of Parliament whose names appeared on the telegram were warned to affirm their loyalty to the party by May 6 or face further action. Fifteen have denied signing it or have already retracted.

In a simultaneous blow at Labor's right wing, Alfred Edwards, who has criticized the government's nationalization of industries, was ordered to explain his activities to a subcommittee of the party executive.

Bill to Cut Reds' Ties With Moscow Approved

ate in the open.

The Mundt-Nixon bill also makes it illegal for any person to become or remain a member of the Communist Party if the organization does not register within 30 days after the law becomes operative.

The measure, which incorporates a Communist-front control bill introduced earlier by Representative Karl Mundt (R., S. Dak.), also provides for the registration of Communist fronts.

The bill provides that the Attorney General decide what organizations are Communist fronts, after a hearing at which the organization is represented. Court review of the Attorney General's findings is provided.

Communist fronts must register with the Department of Justice, but need only file lists of officers and financial reports. Membership lists must be kept and will be open to the Department of Justice for inspection. The committee did not provide for public registration of all members of fronts, Nixon said, because some innocent victims and dupes are on lists of front organizations.

The responsibility for registration of Communist fronts is placed on the officers, who would be subject to the $2000 fine and five-year penalties for failure to comply.

The bill also provides that all organizations registered either as Communist political organizations (in short, the Communist Party) or as Communist fronts must plainly label all propaganda as emanating from Communist sources. Radio broadcasts also must bear the "red" tag.

Communist fronts lose their present Federal tax exemptions and no contributions to any of the listed organizations can be deducted from income taxes.

The measure in most parts specifically mentions the Communist political organization. The section setting forth the stiffest penalties, however, for attempting to establish a foreign-controlled totalitarian dictatorship in the United States omits any definition of such dictatorship as Communist.

Star-Studded Field Begins Capital Open Today

This Morning

—With Shirley Povich

NEW YORK, April 28.—Baseball off the cuff:

As of this morning it was a two-team race in the American League all right, but the two clubs that were supposed to make it—the Yankees and the Red Sox—were back in the ruck and it was a race between the Cleveland Indians and the St. Louis Browns for the League lead.

POVICH

A few days will straighten out that little situation, though, at least with respect to the Browns and probably with respect to the Indians. They have both taken advantage of schedule breaks—the Indians shoving Bob Feller into two starting jobs and one relief chore—and the Browns contending chiefly against the weak White Sox.

At that it has been interesting, if slightly confounding. Gerry Priddy, a .214 hitter who was rated no better than a seventh-place hitter with the Nats last season, has popped up in the important third batting spot for the Browns. They've been winning despite the fact that Priddy, whose batting was a sensation in the exhibition games, hasn't been hitting a lick since the season opened.

AND CLEVELAND IS operating with a second-string second baseman of last season, now starring in the outfield and hitting the daylights out of the ball. He is Larry Doby, the colored boy, who has run the Indians' rookie sensation of last year, Dale Mitchell, out of a job and is blossoming, too, as a home run hitter. Negro National League fans always did rate him as good a ball player as Jackie Robinson, incidentally.

But of the five straight games the Indians had won until today, Feller and Bob Lemon had started four of them. What else Cleveland can draw upon as starting pitchers is somewhat uncertain. The Indians were not supposed to be a hitting club, but to this point they have been knocking more homers than any team in the league.

The Yankees are now making something of a bid. They bounced back from three defeats in their first four games to win three in a row and beat the Red Sox into the first division. Bucky Harris, however, has found it expedient to manipulate the Yankees against right-hand and left-handed pitching like he wasn't forced to do last year, nor Joe McCarthy before him. Against southpaws these days he's replacing George McQuinn with Steve Souchock at first base, and Johnny Lindell is in the left field instead of Charley Keller.

HARRIS HAS COME UP with another stratagem, ever since Yogi Berra regained his health and returned to the catching job. He has tacitly acknowledged Berra's shortcomings as a catcher by replacing him in the late innings with Gus Niarhos if the Yankees have a lead they want to protect. Berra is in there only for his hitting these days.

Harris, however, has had his pitching troubles, like the Red Sox. Only Allie Reynolds has been able to go the route in the Yankees' first seven games of the season, and Reynolds has been no four-alarm wonder. He's barely scraped by in his two starts. Joe Page saved games for the Yankees on two successive days. Harris has used 14 pitchers in the Yankees' first seven games.

Until Mel Parnell came along to shut out the Nats with five hits, Joe McCarthy's Boston pitching was also suspect. Only Mickey Harris was able to go the route before Parnell did it the other night. The feeling in the American League now is that Boo Ferriss never was a good pitcher despite his record, and Tex Hughson, after his operation, complains that he can throw only his fast ball without pain. His curve and slider still hurt him.

THE TIGERS, as had been suspected, aren't a hitting club, and both Freddie Hutchinson and Hal Newhouser have been getting their bumps. Art Houtteman, their wonder kid rookie, lost his first start, too, and the games the Tigers did win were close affairs. The Yankees and Red Sox apparently have nothing to fear from that direction.

The Nats certainly have been one of the surprise clubs of the league, and any day they get good pitching they can be hard to lick, they've demonstrated. They've been laboring without the good hitting they got from Sherry Robertson in the South, and if he recovers his batting stroke the Nats will be a better ball club.

Joe Kuhel's lads are still full of hustle. They put together a four-game winning streak in their first week of play. Sure, they may have been playing over their heads, but as Kuhel says so smartly, "They can't take away from us those games we've already won."

Japs Have Yen (Thousands Of 'Em) for Ruthian Homers

Tokyo, April 28 (AP).—Babe Ruth was honored today in all Japanese professional baseball parks.

Four Japanese players who hit home runs here were given 1000 yen ($20) each by Sekai Nippo, a Tokyo newspaper. Another 1000 yen went to a home run hitter at Osaka.

Spahn Stops Phillies With 2 Hits, 7-0

Boston, April 28 (AP).—A two-hitter that Southpaw Warren Spahn described as "the best performance of my major league career" enabled the Boston Braves to shut out the Philadelphia Phils, 7-0, today before 3681 teeth-chattering spectators.

Although only 28 Phillies faced Spahn, three of them managed to reach first base. Dick Sisler and Blix Donnelly singled in the fifth and sixth innings and Del Ennis gained first on an error. But Sisler and Ennis were thrown out trying to steal.

Perfect Control

Spahn, while gaining his first win in two 1948 starts, did not issue a pass and had four strikeouts. His teammates, sparked by Backstop Bill Salkeld, who collected a triple and two singles, belted Donnelly for 13 hits and wrapped up their third straight victory with a five-run barrage in the sixth inning.

Salkeld's slugging enabled him to score twice and drive in a pair of runs. He came over with the first run in the third, when he singled, stole second and, after being sacrificed, romped in from third base as Eddie Stanky flied to left.

Spahn Strikes Blow

Spahn struck a blow for himself in the fifth when he beat out a bunt and raced to third on a Stanky single. The southpaw pitching ace then countered as Jim Russell hit into a double play.

The roof started caving in on Donnelly when Jeff Heath opened Boston's side of the sixth by drawing a pass. Tommy Holmes then connected safely and Salkeld scored both with his three-bagger to deep left-center.

Al Dark followed with a single and he chalked up the sixth Boston run after Stanky doubled to left. The "Brat," who appears to be in a hitting streak, was brought over the plate by an Earl Torgeson one-base clout.

Reds Pound Cubs, 8-1, Mueller Fractures Ankle

Cincinnati, April 28 (AP).—Johnny Vander Meer held the Chicago Cubs to six hits today while Cincinnati pounded starter Johnny Schmitz and two other pitchers for a dozen safeties to win, 8 to 1.

It was Vandy's second start of the season and his first victory. Ray Mueller, catcher for the locals, fractured his right ankle sliding into home plate in the fifth inning and probably will be out of action 60 days, Redleg officials said.

Virgil Stallcup, the Reds' rookie shortstop, was a batting star, getting three hits and knocking in as many runs.

A cold, dark and drizzling day kept the Ladies' Day attendance down to 1163.

Missing Ramp Keeps 'Dial' Out of Derby

By Walter Haight

HARD LUCK CAUGHT up with Big Dial, Washington-owned colt, yesterday and forced him out of the Kentucky Derby next Saturday.

Playing a hunch that a colt which had been jinxed as much as Big Dial might be due a streak of good luck, his handlers decided last Monday to fly him to Louisville for a crack at the Derby.

Yesterday he was a few feet from going when plans went amiss, and last night Big Dial was back in his stall at Belmont Park, where he probably will be on Saturday when Citation, Coaltion, My Request and the others battle it out at Churchill Downs.

Big Dial was vanned from Belmont to the Newark Airport yesterday morning. When he arrived, it was discovered no loading chute was available for the colt. Frantic efforts were made to obtain a suitable ramp while the colt fidgeted in the van for more than three hours.

THE CHARTERER PLANE crew wanted to hoist Big Dial into the plane, using ropes and straps, but co-owner and trainer Ernie Hart said that not even a Kentucky Derby was important enough to risk injury to the colt. Then he gave the order to return the 3-year-old to Belmont.

A disappointed George Jacobson, a partner with his brother-in-law, Hart, in the ownership of Big Dial, phoned me the news of the colt's withdrawal an hour after he had enthusiastically said, "I'm confident that Big Dial can win. The mile and a quarter is right. Mud would move him up. All he needs is a share of the racing luck and he'll get home on top—Citation or no Citation."

Jacobson, a Connecticut Avenue grocery and liquor store owner, had told me that the decision to ship Big Dial to the Derby was made at the insistence of Dan Burgess, the colt's groom and a veteran of 50 years on the tracks. Burgess, who once rubbed down such stars as Zey and others for Trainer Sam Hildreth and the famous Rancocas Stable, argued that Big Dial deserved the chance.

THERE'S NO DOUBT about Big Dial being a hard luck colt, Maryland fans will remember his race in the Spalding-Lowe-Jenkins and Laurel last October when he was beaten by two noses in the greatest finish of that race, after being all but knocked over the fence at the first turn and being buffeted through the stretch.

The colt was cut about the knees and legs soon after the start, but despite injuries that were to keep him idle for months, he was in that memorable three-way photo—Piet, the winner and Big If second.

"If there was a place to get in tight quarters," said Jacobson, "He seemed to be able to find it."

"In last Saturday's Wood Memorial," he continued, "Big Dial was just beginning to make his move in the stretch when he became jammed between Loser Weeper and Kilroy. Perhaps he wouldn't have beaten My Request with clear sailing, but he would have been darned close."

JACOBSON HAD REASON to believe Big Dial could go the Derby route. His sire is Big Pebble, the 50-1 winner of the 1941 Widener Handicap, and a game distance horse. His dam is Countess Time, who is by Reigh Count, 1928 Derby winner and sire of Count Fleet, 1943 Triple Crown champion.

It was this super breeding that led Jacobson and Hart to acquire Big Dial when the Circle M. Ranch entered him for a $10,000 claiming price at Belmont last June.

When Hart decided not to risk injury to Big Dial he probably had in mind the future engagements of the colt. He is named for the Belmont Stakes, $50,000 New Jersey Handicap, Arlington Classic, Arlington Derby, The Withers, Champagne Stakes and other rich fixtures.

Hart, who makes his home with his mother at 900 Randolph st., nw., is a one-time first flight jockey. His brother, Harry S., is in charge of the thoroughbred operations of Louis B. Mayer, the movie magnate. Jacobson lives at 4407 Connecticut ave., nw.

Before Jacobson received word that Big Dial was out of the Derby he said, "Saturday's my fiftieth birthday. What a present that colt could give me!"

Bid Dial is a hard luck colt if there ever was one.

Nats Idle Hudson Faces Yanks Today

By Shirley Povich
Post Reporter

New York, April 28.—With time to ponder the current situation after the Yankees' front office called off today's scheduled game on account of cold weather, Manager Joe Kuhel of the Nats went strategic in his plans for tomorrow's contest.

Kuhel scratched the name of Walter Masterson from his pitching list for tomorrow and substituted Sid Hudson's. And he shuffled his outfield lineup, benching Leon Culberson temporarily and moving his defensive star, Earl Wooten into center field.

He explained it with what he said was simple logic:

"Masterson was ready, but Hudson is rested, too, and he pitched that five-hitter against the Yankees in Washington, you remember. I'm always scared of home runs in Yankee Stadium—home runs by the Yankees, that is—and Hudson throws that sinker ball that's hard to loft into the seats. So as long as there's only one game here, it will be Hudson pitching."

As for the benching of Culberson, Kuhel has his reasons for that move, too. "There's a lot of wide open spaces in center field in Yankee Stadium, and you know how those Yankees can hit. Wooten can go farther for a fly ball than any outfielder I ever saw, so he's going to be there for our protection."

Kuhel was on the point of benching Right Fielder Sherry Robertson, too, for lack of hitting, in favor of Tom McBride but the presence of Frank Shea on the mound for the Yankees tomorrow has won the left-handed Robertson a new lease on his job.

There is no lack of faith, however, in Gil Coan despite the latter's recent failures against left-handed pitching. "He hit southpaws well in Florida," says Kuhel, "and he still figures to. He looked bad against Mel Parnell of the Red Sox the other night, but no left-hander ever had a more wicked curve than Parnell did that night."

THE YANKEES OBVIOUSLY called off today's game in the interest of a doubleheader at a future date. It wasn't that cold, and the sun was out at noon when the game was declared postponed . . . For Rookies Al Kozar, Len Okrie, Forrest Thompson and Ramon Garcia, it was their first trip to New York and they returned to the hotel tonight slightly stiff-necked . . . In recent years the Nats have had a worse record in Yankee Stadium than in any other park in the league, but when they did win pennants back in 1924 and 1933 it was their faculty for beating the Yankees here that put 'em over . . . Shea, who lost his first start for the Yankees, hasn't been looking like the sensational rookie of 1947. He's overweight, Bucky Harris complains.

It's Big Enough

TO KEEP 'EM DRY—Before Bobby Locke (left), South African star, and Ed Furgol, Pontiac, Mich., fared forth at Prince Georges yesterday they raised an umbrella in the locker room to try it for size. Bob Rodenberg Says Goodbye To ¼ Million $

BALTIMORE, APRIL 28 (AP). Bob Rodenberg, recently deposed owner of the Baltimore Football Colts, sang farewell today—but he served notice it wasn't a swan song.

At a party for the press, the tall, youthful sportsman gave a straight-from-the-shoulder account of financial losses suffered during his one-year tenure as boss of the All-America Conference eleven.

He also threw a little—very little—light on his future plans.

He and his associates, said Rodenberg, wropped $250,000 backing the team, and only $8500 of that came out of Baltimore pockets. The rest was chipped in by him and his Washington crowd. He placed his personal loss at $75,000.

And in what frame of mind did all this leave Rodenberg?

"In a way it was worth it," he says. "I'm still not through with sports. I'm going into something else. It may be in Baltimore, Washington or someplace else. I am not broke."

Shortly after the AAFC announced Rodenberg and his crew had lose the franchise, Mayor Tommy D'Alesandro rounded up a "save-the-Colts" committee to keep the team in Baltimore.

Despite his own unhappy experience, Rodenberg is still high on Baltimore.

"It's a hot sports town," he wants the world to know. "It's a major league town and it's going places."

Hoyas' Bus Werder Joins Trinidad BC Athletic Staff

Bus Werder, Georgetown University's All-Star football guard, is the newest member of the Trinidad Boys Club. Yesterday the Hoya star accepted an appointment as assistant physical athletic director of the club.

He'll take up his duties there after graduation from Georgetown in June but will probably ask for time off to participate in the annual All-Star football game in Chicago late this summer.

Werder has been named on the collegiate team which will meet the National Football League Champion Chicago Cardinals.

Werder is a native of Buffalo, N. Y., where his first athletic experiences were gained at his parish boys club. He started at Georgetown in 1941 and won football honors before and after his three-year service hitch.

Apparently ignoring his drafting by the New York Yankees of the All-American Conference, Bus terms his boys club appointment "one of the biggest thrills of my career."

Colt Eleven Won't Be Homeless, Anyway

Baltimore, April 28 (AP).—The board of estimates approved today a 10-year contract between the city and the Baltimore Colts of the All American Professional Football Conference for use of the Municipal Stadium.

The colts will pay the city 15 per cent of the gross receipts of each home game after Federal and State admission taxes are deducted, or $5000, whichever is the lower. The agreement runs through 1957.

Tigers End Losing Streak, Bump Browns

St. Louis, April 28 (AP).—Snapping a losing streak at five straight, the Detroit Tigers walloped St. Louis 9-4 today and tumbled the Browns from second place in the American League chase.

Eddie Mayo, Pat Mullin and Walter (Hoot) Evers sparked the Detroit attack, witnessed by a small crowd of 2182 which brought the total attendance for the three-game series to only 5552.

Mullin hit a home run, a double and a single, and Mayo had three singles. Evers drove in three of the runs with a three-bagger and an outfield fly.

Virgil (Fire) Trucks struck out seven in gaining credit for the victory but weakened in the eighth and was replaced by Paul (Dizzy) Trout.

6000 May Follow 127 Entries Over Heavy Links

By Morris Siegel
Post Reporter

Under cloudy skies and with the temperature in the fifties, the "summer" golf season opens this morning at the Prince Georges Golf and Country Club where the first 18-hole round of the $14,000 National Capital Open will be played.

The weather may be a bit breezy, but the glittering field of hot shots should provide enough warmth for the expected 6000 opening day enthusiasts.

Tee off time for the cast of 127 is 9 a. m. and from then until 3:15 they'll come out swinging at seven minutes intervals. The honor of sending the second annual tournament on its way goes to host Pro Al Houghton who will have two other local professionals as his playmates, Mel Shorey, of Indian Spring, and Clagget Stevens, of Manor.

Champions All

Every major championship is represented in the star-studded field, easily the best in years for a similar 72-hole event.

Lloyd Mangrum, the mustachioned "Purple Heart Kid" did the 72 holes in 269 to win last year's inaugural. He, National Open Champion Lew Worsham of Washington, and Ben Hogan have not only been installed as the favorites, but they're also playing together.

This threesome goes off at 1:40, or thereabouts, with three other highly regarded shotmakers, PGA Champion Jim Ferrier, Bobby Locke and Cary Middlecoff, runnerup in the Masters, following approximately an hour later.

While Worsham and Ferrier represent the United States Open and National PGA championships, respectively, the king of the Nation's amateurs Skee Riegel is on hand also. Their presence gives the three major United States championships representation, but also in the field are the champions of all except four of the big money tournaments held since January.

More Important

The $2200 top money is the prime objective of the course wreckers, but they'll also be shooting for berths in the National PGA tournament. The low 25 scorers automatically qualify for the St. Louis event next month, thus making the neighborhood show even more significant nationally.

Although the course is heavy from early rains and the field will have four new grens to contend with, tourney officials still expect the experts to play hob with their 6800-yard-long county layout. They don't feel that Mangrum's 269 is in danger, or Ed Furgol's record 63, either, but they're confident that it will take at least a 272 to win the marbles.

Pairings remain the same for Friday's second 18-hole round, but after that new groupings will be made as only the 60 low shooters are eligible for Saturday's semi-windup and Sunday's final 18.

The clinic scheduled for yesterday was postponed because of rain and will be held at 5 p. m. Saturday instead . . . Joe Kirkwood's trick shot exhibition has been moved back to Sunday at 5 p. m.

Capital Open Starting Times for 2 Days

Following are the pairings and starting times for Thursday's and Friday's rounds of the National Capital Open at Prince Georges Country Club. The low 60 players will be rematched for Saturday and Sunday rounds.

Shivaree Wins Feature In 'Graw Mud

Havre de Grace, Md., April 28.—In a day marked by upsets, Margie Fisher's Shivaree added the finishing touches by romping home a two-length winner of the sixth and featured race.

The Swashbuckler 5-year-old dashed the 6 furlongs in the creditable time of 1:12 3/5 to beat J. H. Hammond's Butler. The latter was a head better than Walter M. Jeffords' Snow Goose for the place award.

Early morning rains made the racing strip sloppy and 6010 fans turned out to witness the sport. The mutuel handle was the lowest of the meeting.

Pays $10.80 to Win

The figure players in the gathering backed Shamrock Stable's Air Patrol into the favorite's role for the headliner. The Sun Teddy gelding pulled up lame and managed to beat The Doge in the six-horse field. The latter was second choice in the betting.

Shivaree skimmed the rail to take the lead in the first sixteenth of a mile and under the steadying influence of Apprentice Petey Sheridan opened up a two-length lead.

Butler and The Doge were closest in pursuit, but the latter gave up the chase after the first half mile to wind up a badly beaten last.

Entering the stretch Shivaree opened up a three-lengths lead as Snow Goose made a late charge which fell short of taking the place honors. Shivaree returned his backers a $10.80 mutuel.

Long Ones Score

The adage about longshots on off-tracks held good today as outsiders came winging home in the early races.

After Kapok accounted for the first race at $8.60 straight, His Whizz, owned by Nick Ledas, whizzed home to take the second race and pay $110.80 straight. The son of Whizzaway won one race at Sunshine Park this winter and was the longest-priced horse in the field of nine platers.

Winning $2 tickets on the daily double combination of "9-3" paid $380.60.

Coaltown Red Hot in Final Drill

By Gale Talbot

Louisville, Ky., April 28 (AP).—Coaltown turned in another of his amazing workouts at Churchill Downs today, fairly burning up the famous racing strip for 6 furlongs and further convincing the experts that Saturday's Kentucky Derby will be strictly a match race between him and his stablemate, Citation.

Four days before the 3-year-old classic, little is heard except Citation and Coaltown—or vice versa. Louisville bookmakers are offering even money that the Calumet Farm's entry will run one-two, and from Warren Wright, owner of the two beauties, comes positive assurance that there will at least be a family horse race.

"There will be no declaring to win with either Coaltown or Citation," he declared at his home near Lexington. "It will be a real horse race, and may the best horse win. I want to win the Derby, and I don't care which one gets down in front.

After Triple Crown

"They're both fine colts and I can't show any partiality. I do hope, however, that the better of the two is the winner of the Derby and then goes on to win the triple crown."

Ben Jones, general manager and trainer for Calumet, feels the same way about it, and one would swear that "Plain Ben" is just as intrigued at the prospect of watching his two firecrackers go at each other as are any of the thousands of fans already pouring into the city. He has a slight leaning toward Citation.

Citation Loafs

"Coaltown is ready to go now," he smiled. "His time today is like 1:10 2-5 any place else." (The track record at Churchill Downs is 1:10 3-5).

Citation did nothing more strenuous today than graze in a field adjoining the Calumet stable and rest up from his winning romp in the 1-mile Derby Trial yesterday.

Besides Coaltown, the only Derby candidate to try his legs was Mrs. John Payson Adams' Grandpere, which went a rather leisurely mile and one eighth in 1:59 3/5. His trainer, Ernie Shaw, said he was satisfied and that the horse will start Saturday.

My Request, the Ben Whitaker colt, which arrived yesterday wearing his Wood Memorial laurels, was taken out for a brief gallop. The son of Requested appears so far to be the popular choice to chase Citation and Coaltown home.

As of today, the Downs management was listing six horses as virtually certain starters in the $100,000 added classic—Citation, Coaltown, My Request, Grandpere, Escadru and Billings. C. A. O'Neil's Galedo is a possibility if the Derby track is muddy, but Dixiana Stable's Shy Guy is not expected to go.

The weather turned chilly today after several days of muggy heat, but the long-range forecast for Saturday calls for a return of high temperatures, possibly accompanied by showers.

Schooling Show Opens Heavy Weekend for Area Horsemen

By Harry DeMawby, Jr.

The Warrenton (Va.) Schooling Show at 10 a. m. Saturday will begin a busy weekend for Washington area horsemen.

The Washington Bridle Trails Association will hold the first of two shows at 10 a. m. Sunday and the Penn-Daw Volunteer Fire Department and Rescue Squad will stage its sixth annual show at 1 p. m. Sunday at Beacon Airport on U. S. route 1 in Groveton, Va.

First of the larger shows of the season, the Warrenton show will be held on the famous Warrenton Show Grounds. Fifteen classes rae listed, including five classes for green hunters.

There will be six events open to all hunters, three for the jumpers, a lead line class for very young exhibitors and the Virginia Horseman's Association will make its annual high score award to 2-year-olds suitable to become hunters.

Sunday morning's Bridle Trails Association show enables the occasional rider to exhibit hired mounts in competition with privately owned mounts. No fees are charged exhibitors or spectators but all exhibitors must be members of the Association.

Points earned in the Trails show may be accumulated toward the grand championship awards at the end of the season.

The Penn-Daw show, a non-championship, affair, lists a card of 15 classes. Six are for open jumpers, five for hunters, two in the saddle horse division, one for saddle ponies and one novelty class.

Civil Rights Drive Begun By Senators

Senate Republicans yesterday opened a session's end civil rights drive, reviving the South's open break with the President and promising a showdown in Congress on at least one key civil rights bill within the next month.

1. TThe Senate Rules Committee approved House-passed anti-poll tax legislation by a vote of 7 to 2. The bill outlaws the poll tax as a voting prerequiste in seven Southern States: Texas, Mississippi, Arkansas, Alabama, Tennessee, Virginia and South Carolina.

2. The Senate Judiciary Committee called a meeting today to approve antilynching legislation, already favorably reported by a subcommittee, and passed in different form by the House. This bill has been singled out for the session's first Senate civil rights test, topping all the other civil rights planks in priority.

Action in Mid-May

Under a schedule already approved by Senate Republican policy makers, the anti lyinching measure will be called up in the Senate around the middle of May.

Both measures and a third previously placed on the calendar—FEPC legislation—are key points in the President's civil rights program and helped focus the South's anti-Truman "rebellion."

Whether the poll tax measure reaches a Senate vote may depend on what happens in the anti-lynching test. Republicans plan to use every available device, including cloture, to break through a Southern filibuster and pass the bill. If the Southerners are quickly routed, the poll tax bill may soon follow. But if the Dixie contingent again succeeds in stalemating anti-lynching legsilation, all civil rights measures will be laid aside for the session.

Five Senate Rules Committee Republicans, C. Wayland Brooks (Ill.), Irging M. Ives (N. Y.), John W. Bricker (Ohio), Kenneth S. Wherry (Nebr.) and Bourke B. Hickenlooper (Iowa), joined with two Democrats, Theodore F. Green (R. I.) and Brien McMahon (Conn.), in voting out the antipoll tax bill yesterday.

Two Democrats Opposed

Two Democrats, Carl Hayden (Ariz) and John C. Stennis (Miss.) voted "no." Hayden said he favored poll tax repeal, but by constitutional amendment rather than direct legislation. Stennis argued the bill is unconstitutional.

The anti-lynching bill slated for action in the Senate Judiciary Committee was drawn and approved by a subcommittee headed by Senator Homer Ferguson (R., Mich.).

Senator Ferguson's bill imposes criminal penalties of $10,000 and 20 years for actual participation in a lynching. For negligence in preventing a lynching, Federal, State and local officials would be liable to a $5000 fine and 5 years' jail.

Communities in which a lynching occurs would be liable to civil damages to the lynching victim or his next of kin of from $2000 to $10,000. Federal State and local officials who failed to do their duty also would be liable to civil damages.

Seizure of a person suspected, charged or connected with a crime by two or more persons taking the law into their own hands would be defined as a lynching.

New 'Exhibit' of German Art . . .

The Washington Post

Sheathed in glistening white armor, familiar-faced kinght rides a black steed—atop a Pentagon filing cabinet.

Sorting is being done by the historical properties branch of the Washington Military District, under direction of Division Chief Edwin L. Taggart.

When indexed, the works will add up to a graphic historical record of the Germany under Hitler that wa sriding roughshod over the world. It has not yet been decided whether to exhibit the collection.

The art was formerly the property of the German Wehrmacht, paid for by the Nazi government. It was collected throughout Germany by the historical division of the Army's European Theater.

The artists have been identified by name, but so far little has yet been turned up about their backgrounds, Taggart says. The works include a surprisingly wide range in materials, technique and subject matter.

Some of the paintings seen by a reporter yesterday formed a striking outline of the Nazis' rise and fall.

One propaganda effort shows blood-bathed Russians, faces distorted by pain, clutching a white surrender flag.

Truer to history was a pair of pictures by different artists of a General Dietl. One portrait showed a stern, but sure general, in 1941. The other portrait revealed a war-weary man with a face like a contour map of the Rockies, painted in 1943, after he had served on the Russian front.

Among those pictures in which artistic intent was not secondary to propaganda, were works by one Olaf Jordan and one Kurt Kranz.

Jordan's were characters studies in the traditiona,l grand manner, calling to mind Holbein in their tightness and edge. Vividly effective were impressionistic gouaches, thick water color sketches of Finland and Norway by Kranz.

'Mr. Washington' Will Be Chosen From Muscle Men

The Jewish Community Center will be the scene of much muscle-flexing Saturday, beginning at 4 p. m.

At that time the District AAU weight-lifting championships will commence. And following, the "Mr. Washington of 1948" contest will take place.

Among the standout entries in the weight-lifting tournament are Keith Kallio, Washington policeman; Roger Johnston, and Joe Accardi, four times champion among the heavyweights; Joe Blaine and Sam Marshal lin the 181-pound class; defending titleholder Gord Brown in the 165 class; Tootsie Cardinale in the 148, and Clarence Hannan in the 132.

Outstanding candidate for "Mr. Washington" is Irving Bridgers of the Ambassador Health Club. Bridgers, national junior low board diving champion and District low and high board titleholder, was runner-up in last year's contest. Robert Shreve, last year's "Mr. Washington," is ineligible to enter.

Colonials Host To W&L Today

Comfortably entrenched in the Southern Conference's first place, Washington and Lee University's Generals invade Griffith Stadium today to meet George Washington's hard-hitting Colonials at 3 p. m.

Today's encounter was to be the second of a three-game series for W. and L. against area colleges, but their first game against Maryland yesterday was postponed indefinitely because of rain. W. and L. completes its invasion Friday against Georgetown at the latter's Medical Field.

When they take the field against G. W., the Generals will have with them an 8-1 record in league competition and a 10-4 record against all comers. George Washington has split even in six Conference games, and has a season's mark of 7-4.

It's the second meeting of the two clubs this season, W. and L. having eked out a 13-12 victory in 10 innings at Lexington, Va., last month.

Today's game provides two W. and L. boys with a personal homecoming. Captain and Second Baseman Freddie Vinson, jr., son of the United States Chief Justice, and First Baseman Brian Bell are both local boys. It was Vinson who slapped out the tenth inning single which drove in the winning run in the last G.W.— W. and L. game. He also rapped out a homer and two doubles in that contest.

Three other collegiate baseball games are slated today. Weak American U., winner of only two games in 12 starts, plays at Georgetown, whose Hoyas have won 10 out of 14. Catholic U. entertains Washington College and Howard plays Delaware State on the North Ellipse. The latter two games were originally slated for yesterday but were moved back because of the rain.

Chuck Coulter, with his four first period tallies and a second period goal, was high scorer, Fred Isenbrandt, substitute attackman, scored four times for Duke.

The Federal Diary

Martin Pledges Action On Federal Pay Raise Before Session Ends

House Speaker Joe Martin yesterday assured a group of Federal worker leaders that a general pay raise bill would be approved at this session of Congress. He added that it would be from two to three weeks before action would be taken.

Martin refused to indicate how much of an increase Government employes would be given. However, he did say that the Rees-Butler bill as approved by the House Civil Service Committee was the maximum that could be hoped for.

That bill provides a flat increase of $585 for postal employes and $468 a year for each of the 800,000 employes whose salaries are fixed by the Classification Act. The bill is temporary. It would be effective from May 1 through June 30 of next year.

The Speaker said a survey would first have to be made of the Government's fiscal picture and conferences held with Senate GOP leaders before a final pay bill is agreed on. He emphasized that the delay in taking up the pay problem was not caused by resentment toward Federal workers.

Meantime, Senator Taft, the GOP Senate leader, has informed Ohio postal employes that he will support a minimum increase of $585 for each of the 475,000 postal employes. He added that he would support an even larger increase on a permanent basis. Furthermore, Taft implied he would get behind pay raises for nonpostal employes.

All of which indicates that Federal workers are 90 per cent sure of higher salaries before July 1.

At the conference with Speaker Martin were these AFL employe leaders: Leo George, Tom Walters, Bob Rice, James Burns and Reuben Kremers.

ACTION: A new Langer bill yesterday was approved by a one-man subcommittee of the Senate Civil Service Committee. The one man was Chairman Langer himself. Under the bill Federal workers would get benefits which are often taken for granted by workers in private industry. The benefits would be:

1. A system of unemployment compensation for the two million Government people which would protect those who are laid off and who can't find other jobs with a minimum paycheck of $20 for 26 weeks;

2. Severence pay of two weeks' salary to each Federal employe who is laid off, and,

3. Transportation costs, plus a $6 daily travel allowance, for any Government employe who is laid off and who returns to his home within 30 days.

The unemployment compensation feature would be handled by the Social Security Administration. Federal workers would not be required to contribute to it. The minimum jobless allowance would be $20 a week, or one fourth of the basic weekly salary of the employe, whichever is larger.

The Administration will support the bill.

STATUS: Chairman Langer ordered hearings today on two more Federal worker bills that bear his name. These measures are:

A bill to grant permanent status to war service and temporary workers who have done satisfactory work in their jobs for at least five years and who pass noncompetitive tests, and,

Another bill to protect nonveteran career employes with more than 10 years of service from being bumped out of their jobs by veterans with less service, all other factors being equal.

STATE: Lloyd Lehrbas will be appointed chief of State's reorganized office of foreign information and propaganda. He's a former AP war correspondent, press officer for General MacArthur and editor of the World Report. A very good man.

DRAFT: Leaders of most scientific and professional societies will hold a closed meeting in New York City today to discuss the danger of drafting scientists and technicians.

PAYLESS PAY DAY: This will happen Friday to the 395 employes of Commerce's Office of Export Control. Funds to pay these employes is tied up in a deficiency bill which is in a House-Senate conference.

150,000 Expected At Shenandoah Fete

By Dorothea Andrews
Post Reporter

Winchester, Va., April 28.—Some visitors to Winchester today were met by a townsman who said: "I hope you like our weather, because it's the best we've got right now."

It really wasn't very good, being mostly rain and mist, but for Thursday the weatherman has promised clear skies and cool breezes, and the twenty-first annual Shenandoah Apple Blossom Festival is expected to get off as scheduled.

Thursday's presentation of the pageant, "Our Heritage," will be preceded by the crowning of Miss Gretchen Van Zandt Merrill, America's 1948 national woman figure-skating champion and 1948 Olympic star, as festival queen. Gen. Hoyt S. Vandenberg, chief of staff designate, United States Air Force, will crown the queen.

Received at White House

Miss Merrill came to Winchester last night from Washington, where she was received by President and Mrs. Truman at the White House.

Photographers had a field day snapping the 22-year-old Bostonian as she posed with an unbaked apple pie—although she confided she couldn't even boil water," and later climbed the ladder of one of the fire trucks which will participate in tomorrow night's Winchester and Visiting Fireman's Torchlight and Mummers parade.

Miss Merrill confided that she some times goes on "apple binges," and eats five or six at a time.

Wearing clothes straight from Paris, the petite figure skater, who resembles Sonja Henie, told reporters, "I have an ingenue face and I don't have an ingenue personality to go with it.

"Now just look at this nose," she explained, pointing to an upturned and quite perky object. "I'd like to go into politics but who would believe I was trying to put over the Marshall Plan with a nose like that?

Faces Crowded Program

The queen faces a very busy day Thursday when she and her court of princesses will tour the apple orchards in the morning, attend coronation ceremonies at 3 p. m. reign at the pageant which follows, and then, at 10 p. m. go to the Armory for the Queen's ball, music by Johnny Long.

If the festival days are clear, officials here predict an attendance of 150,000 as compared with last year's 125,000.

Friday's feature parade, largest in the history of the festival, is expected to draw bigger-than-usual crowds. Bing Crosby, grand marshal, is expected to arrive here late Thursday or early Friday.

Friday's event will include a mass band concert of 2000 young musicians representing 25 bands, who will perform under a single conductor.

Pageant Rehearsal Indoors

Today, final rehearsel of the pageant, usually held on the huge lawn of Handley High School, was moved indoors because it was raining at the 2 p. m. rehearsal time.

Since last year there have been some revisions in the pageant by its author, Garland R. Quarles, superintendant of Winchester Schools. Rehearsals began last March 1, for the more than 1000 Winchester school children who participate.

Winchester, U. S. A., and Winchester, England, will again "shake hands" across the seas at the 1948 festival. The mother city in England is sending Miss Shirley Crompton as representative. The English-born miss, who will be a pageant princess, has completed a year and a half of graduate work in chemistry at Duke University, N. C., in addition to having studied at numerous English schools, including Oxford.

Somerset County May Not Get 75 Oyster Appeals

Annapolis, Md., April 28 (AP).—Maryland's Tidewater Fisheries Commission was told today that 75 cases appealed from oyster law convictions may not be prosecuted in Somerset County.

Two appeals were tried in the county court, Inspector John H. Byrd reported, and juries found the accused watermen innocent.

Byrd, district inspector for the commission at Crisfield, wrote that the State's attorney said he was "not going to try any more." E. McMaster Duer is State's attorney for Somerset County.

The convictions before a magistrate had been mostly on charges of violating the State cull law. This prohibits keeping oysters under 3 inches.

Baltimore Man Heads Maryland Eisenhower Group

By The Associated Press

Samuel Frank of Baltimore was announced yesterday as Maryland State director of a Veterans-for-Eisenhower organization.

The group, composed of former servicemen, proposes to draft former Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower as a candidate for President on the Democratic ticket.

Richard Hawkins, director of public relations for Veterans for Eisenhower, said the group already has units set up in 24 States. Its national office is in Washington.

New Chevrons to Mark Combat, Rear Noncoms

The Army yesterday issued orders for new type chevrons that will distinguish combat noncommissioned officers from those in rear-echelons.

The combat men will wear chevrons of dark blue on a gold-colored embroidered background. Noncombatants will wear chevrons of gold on a dark blue background.

The new, smaller chevrons become effective in July. In addition, combat leaders such as squad sergeants and platoon sergeants, will wear a green cloth tab, 1 inch wide, on the middle of each shoulder loop.

Farmrs Worried by Ruling on Packaged Apples, Vegetables

By the Associated Press

An IIICC ruling affecting agricultural products processed before shipment is causing concern to Virginia farmers, Representative Hardy (D., Va.) said yesterday.

The Interstate Commerce Commission has granted a hearing to reopen the matter, he said. No date has been set.

The ruling would remove from the class of unmanufactured agricultural commodities such products as applies, potatoes and fresh vegetables wwhen they are washed and packaged for sale to the consumer before being shipped.

The Department of Agriculture, which has asked a hearing, is expected soon to have its case against the ruling ready, Hardy stated.

M. A. Hubbard, executive secretary of the Virginia Farm Bureau Federation, Harrisonburg, Va., wrote Hardy that if the ruling is allowed to stand it probably would affect innumerable commodities of a semiprocessed nature.

"This, as we see it," he added, "will work an undue and altogether unwarranted hardship on our Virginia producers and shippers, as well as those in other States. Every effort should be made to get this matter corrected."

Bringing such farm products under ICC regulation, Hardy explained, would tend to cramp the seasonal movement of farm produce. Truck shippers would be brought under regulations dealing with routes, rates, backhauls and licenses.

Denton Residents Are Vicitims of Tea Leaf 'Humus'

Denton, Md., April 28 (AP).—Residents here would like to have a little talk with a man from New Jersey.

It seems he sold a number of persons here some stuff which he said was humus. It turned out to be spent tea leaves mixed with dirt and water.

He charged three cents a pound for the stuff and made sales ranging from $5 to $800.

A State chemist analyzed the concoction. He said that while there is no Maryland law forbidding sale of the mixture, organic matter just as good for lawns can be purchased at a much lower price.

Training School Head Named by Maryland

Baltimore, April 28 (AP).—Dr. Edward Preston Sharp, director of community work for the Pennsylvania department of welfare, today was named chief of the division of training schools for Maryland.

In the new $7000-a-year post, Dr. Sharp will supervise the four State training schools for youngsters who have run afoul of the law and three private schools which care for delinquent children, sometimes at State expense.

Before she would begin her prayers, Mrs. Wyche said, the woman insisted that she round up all her money, "because there's a curse on it."

Under "her spell," Mrs. Wyche said, "I did it."

After praying over the cash—together with a gold pocket watch—the Gypsy advised her to put them in an old stocking and place same under her pillow for a few days.

When she peeked into the stocking some time later, Mrs. Wyche related, she found nothing but an old newspaper.

Muirkirk Tragedy

Train Death Is Ruled Accidental

A certificate of accidental death was issued yesterday in the death of Fred J. Haker, 33, of near Laurel, Md., by Dr. James I. Boyd, Prince Georges County medical examiner. Haker was killed by a Baltimore & Ohio Railroad train at Muirkirk Tuesday.

Joseph J. Pessango of Pine Grove, Md., engineer of the lead locomotive on the double-header Washington-bound train, told Maryland State Police Sergt. M. M. Punckey that Haker was lying on the railroad tracks.

Pessagno said he thought some papers were on the track until the train was too close to avoid striking the man. The engineer threw on his emergency brakes, he said, but was unable to stop in time.

Haker was taken to the Waters Funeral Home, Laurel, Md.

The dead man, unmarried, was an employe of the Government Experimental Farms at Beltsville, Md., and lived on Bowie rd. near Laurel.

Pessagno was engineer of a train which on April 19, 1947, killed two men at the Melrose crossing, Hyattsville, Md. The car of the men, Ralph R. Dofflemyer, 43, of Takoma Park, and Frank P. Leitch, 60, of Washington, was struck after it was trapped by crossing gates.

Fumes Fell Driver

A car driven by Ann R. Mason, 40, of Marbury, Charles County, Md., left Livingston rd., near Broad Branch yesterday when she was overcome by carbon monoxide fumes.

Police said the fumes apparently came from a leaking exhaust. Other than suffering from inhalation of the fumes, she was uninjured. She was treated at Freedmen's Hospital here.

54,256 Registered Voters

Prince Georges County now has 54,256 persons registered as voters.

A total of 1841 of these, however, will not be eligible to vote in the May 3 Democratic and Republican primaries because they declined to affiliate with a party or are members of minor parties.

The general registration Tuesday and the special registration which has been carried on daily at the Courthouse in Upper Marlboro, have added 3644 Democrats, 1352 Republicans and 204 who declined to affiliate or are members of small parties. This brings the total to 35,899 Democrats, 16,516 Republicans and 1841 members of minority parties or independents.

More than 1000 registered apprentices are now in training here, Gino J. Simi, District apprenticeship director, announced yesterday.

Realty Broker Freed of Charges By D. C. Board

The District Real Estate Commission yesterday charges of dismission yesterday dismissed charge of "misrepresentation" and "false promise" against D. Patrick Williams, real estate broker of 3112 11th st. nw.

The commission said it found insufficient evidence that Williams had been guilty of misrepresentation in the sale of a house at 324 11th st. ne. to Wallace and Ida M. Mitchell.

The Mitchells had charged that Williams failed to tell them of a $300 discount for a second deed of trust, which made the true price of the house $9500, rather than the $9200 he had quoted.

U. S. Adventist Membership Gained 8057 in '47

Seventh-Day Adventists increased their church membership in North America by 8057 in 1947, Claude Conrad, statistical secretary for the general conference told the church's spring council yesterday in Takoma Park.

This brings the total North American membership to 228,179, he said.

Total offerings for 1947 amounted to $29,374,422, an increase of $710,993 in one year, Conrad said. Per Capita giving, he reported, amounted to $130.21.

Paul Wickman, secretary of the Adventist Radio Commission, reported Bible study broadcasts, known as "Voice of Prophecy," are now being given over 612 stations, 188 in foreign countries. The number represents a growth from 85 stations in this country only in 1942.

Mental Hospitals Here Held Best Staffed in U. S.

The District of Columbia staffs its mental hospitals better than any similar institutions in the country.

This was learned yesterday from statistics released by the Mental Hygiene Division of the Public Health Service.

The District has 2376 full time employes in mental hospitals here, and an average daily resident patient population of 6221. Its 2.6 ratio of patients to employes is the lowest reported by PHS. A total of $6,587,181 was spent in 1946, test year for the statistics, on hospital maintenance here, or $1058.86 per patient.

In hospitals covered by the survey, a ratio of 6.2 patients per employe was found to be the median. The District also fared well on overcrowding, with its facilities now being used only to within 85 per cent of capacity. There are 1000 beds not in use, the figures show.

Breneman, Radio Figure, Dead at 47

Hollywood, April 28 (AP).—Tom Breneman, jovial mastermind of one of radio's most popular shows, died unexpectedly today of a heart attack while guests were gathering for his broadcast.

Breneman

The baby-faced, grey-haired master of ceremonies of "Breakfast in Hollywood"—who sold soap and cereal and brought laughs to an estimated 10 million persons daily—succumbed at his Encino home a few minutes after breakfast. He was 47. Death was unexpected although a few weeks ago he took a month's rest on doctor's orders.

Breneman had been on the air off and on for more than 20 years, had virtually grown up with the industry.

He kissed old ladies on his program and they loved it. Bald men happily accepted pink plastic combs. He ridiculed women's hats, donned the more extravagant chapeaux himself to the shrieks of delight from his audience. He gave an orchid to the oldest lady at the show.

The line was already forming for today's broadcast when Breneman's wife, the former actress Billie Dunn, heard him collapse in the bedroom. She called a doctor, but Breneman was dead.

The program was transcribed a day in advance, and officials of the American Broadcasting Co. said yesterday's will never be heard.

In addition to his widow, two children, Gloria, 19, and Tom, jr., 14, survive.

Fairfax Gets 12-Cent Hike In Tax Rate

Fairfax County Board of Supervisors yesterday adopted a 1948 tax rate of $3.19 per $100 assessed valuation on real estate and personal property.

The new rate is 12 cents higher than last year's, but 28 cents below that which would have been needed to meet the tentative county budget proposed last month.

The new rate becomes effective July 1.

Revenue cuts from the tentative budget estimates hit the school debt and capital outlay and fire levy.

The school debt share of the $3.19 rate, was reduced to 25 cents from a requested 48 cents. The $2.40 sought by schools for operating was not changed.

The school debt revenue decrease will amount to about $105,000, School Supt. W. T. Woodson said. The schools, he said, probably will meet the decrease by deleting a $100,000 item for purchase of school sites.

The fire levy, set at 14 cents, was increased 7 cents over last year, but 5 cents less than requested.

M. C. Pfalzgraf, president of the County Firemen's Association, said the cut, which amounts to about $20,000, probably will mean less new equipment and elimination of plans for a fulltime paid man at the firehouses to take calls and maintain equipment.

In other respects, the budget remains the same as presented at public hearing April 20.

Traffic Survey Rates District 54% 'Satisfactory'

A study by the traffic committee of the Washington Board of Trade gives the District a 54 per cent "satisfactory" rating in its efforts to overcome major traffic problems.

Basing its study on 33 questions submitted to its 52 members, the committee yesterday said Washington's rating compared favorably with other large cities.

But, it added, the study indicates "many things still must be done to relieve traffic congestion on the existing street system." The study clearly points to "the need for the fullest support of the traffic improvement program of the Department of Vehicles and Traffic," the committee sadi.

The figures were reached by combining the percentages of favorable, unfavorable and partially favorable answers to the questions.

Riverdale Man Is Sentenced for Assault on Girl

A 37-year-old Riverdale (Md.) milkman yesterday was sentenced to five years in prison for assault with intent to have carnal knowledge of an 11-year-old girl.

Te was Norman R. Strait of 2705 Nicholson st., who was found guilty by an all-male jury in Princes Georges Circuit Court in Upper Marlboro. He is the father of two children.

Strait was found guilty of picking up the girl in his car and taking her to a wooded area in Dodge Park near Jalmer rd., on March 4.

Arlington Democrats Meet Tonight

The Arlington County Democratic Executive Committee will meet tonight to decide whether or not the party will nominate a candidate for the Arlington County Board.

If the Democrats decide to nominate, Arlington Republicans have indicated they will follow likewise.

The meting has been called by County Democratic Chairman Harrison Mann for 8 p. m. in the Rucker Building on Wilson blvd. in Clarendon.

Whether the two major parties will enter candidates or permit this fall's County Board election, in which one vacant board seat will be filled, to be non-partisan has been a heated issue in Arlington politics.

The county GOP committee tentatively has scheduled a primary for August 3 to pick a Republican candidate, depending on "what the Democrats do" about the nonpartisan issue.

The Arlington League of Women Voters, the Better Government League and the Citizens Coommittee for School Improvement all have urged both parties not to make nominations and to leave the race on a nonpartisan basis. Last year both parties agreed not to nominate for the county and school board races.

Retirement Plans

It'll Be Farmer MacArthur, General Confides After He's Finished His Job

By Mary Van Rensselaer Thayer

JOSEPH B. KEENAN, our chief counsel at the Japanese War Crimes prosecutions, is back after 2½ years in Tokyo. The trials ended March 16, the verdicts are to be readied about 6 weeks from that date, when Attorney Keenan will return to Japan. He expects the sentences to be executed with dispatch.

Mr. Keenan, due to pressure of work, claims little knowledge of the Japanese, less of their country. But he does know a lot about General MacArthur. The general, he says, is still handsome though he no longer possesses matinee idol type looks. He works seven days a week, all day long, has only left the city of Tokyo five times (and then very briefly) since his arrival shortly after VJ-Day. He lives most comfortably, of course, in the United States Embassy, one of our best, has movies sent in from time to time. His hobby, very definitely, is work. MacArthur simply must keep his extraordinary brain busy, Mr. Keenan says.

The general told the chief counsel that he will retire to a farm when his job is done. After this statement, noting Keenan's quizzical expression, MacArthur laughed, "You don't think I'd know what to do on a farm? Well I assure you, I do!"

Catherine Finds a New Home

SUNDAY AND MONDAY, when Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Davies gave twin receptions, guests had an opportunity to admire porcelains, silver, icons, paintings, expensive trifles like Faberge jewelled Easter eggs, which they bought in Russia. More recent acquisitor of Russian art, however, is a member of the staff of Gen. "Beedle" Smith, our Ambassador in Moscow. He was allowed to purchase and bring back a number of paintings because all were in bad condition. Among them was a portrait of Catherine the Great, one of Peter the Great, both attributed to Rigault.

Catherine was beautifully reconditioned by a National Gallery of Art expert, sent to Mrs. Charles Baker, who runs Commission, Ltd., to sell. An art connoisseur discovered that the portrait, one of two for which the much-painted Czarina posed in person, shows the ardent Catherine in full regalia and decorations.

Yesterday, Catherine found a new home. She was bought by Prince and Princess Serge Belossolsky and will be taken to their house in Ipswich, Mass. Princess Belossolsky is a daughter of Mrs. Richard T. Crane of Chicago. The Cranes' Ipswich residence is an enormous, gray stone chateau set on a high hill overlooking the ocean—a fine setting for Catherine and anyone rejoicing in the name Belossolsky. If Czar Peter can be equally rejuvenated, he will journey to Ipswich, too.

Collections for Britain

YESTERDAY, mentioning a clothes' and discarded house furbishings' collection for Britain, Mrs. R. W. Urquhart's previous telephone number was printed by mistake. Mrs. Urquhart, wife of a British Embassy Minister, may be reached at Michigan 9137, to pick up bundles. Apologies to the wrong number owner, a much-tried gent, justly irate at being inundated with offers of slightly worn evening frocks!

Innovations for Flower Mart

THE ANNUAL FLOWER MART, held on the Washington Cathedral steps, is to be bigger and better on May 7. There are to be nine more booths, and a handy innovation—"baby sitters." The sitters will donate their services watching kiddies (while mamas disport themselves), in a picket fence enclosure equipped with such infantile attractions as a sandbox, lollipops, balloons and such. Mrs. Truman will open the mart at 11 a. m., and afterward present two prizes—to the prettiest booth selling flowers, the prettiest ditto selling food. For years Rosalind Wright's "Boutonnieres" Booth has walked off with first prize. This year she'll be away but the committee, headed by Miss Helen Clif... is on tip-toe not to lose out on "Babs" Wright's record. Mrs. William L. Ritchie is chairman and the proceeds will go to upkeep of the bishop's garden.

By William Klemm—The Washington Post

THE Women's Advertising Club of Washington celebrated its fifth birthday last night with a gala banquet in the Washington Hotel. Gathered around the birthday cake are (left to right) Mrs. Jean Ambrose, president; Miss Betty Gwyer and Mrs. Edith Lusby, two charter members attending the fete. Mrs. Ambrose was elected at a business meeting at the banquet. Other officers named were Miss Nancy Osgood, vice president; Miss Jane Beam, recording secretary; Mrs. Edith Lusby, corresponding secretary; and Mrs. Violet Dudley, treasurer

MAKING musical notes at the Thrift Shop tea yesterday were Lawrence Tibbett, baritone; Miss Margaret Truman and Miss Evelyn Tyner, pianist. The event for the benefit of the Thrift Shop, was attended by members of official and resident society. Mrs. John Allan Dougherty, chairman of the committee, was founder of the organization

By Gene Jones—The Washington Post

AT the Thrift Shop's annual "white elephant tea," held this year at Anderson House, guests brought bundles as the price of admission. Mrs. Truman attended the tea yesterday and the camera caught her chatting with Mrs. Fred Vinson (left), Mrs. Tom Clark, wife of the Attorney General, and Miss Meredith Howard (right)

Mrs. Truman Is Guest at Benefit Tea

By Elizabeth Maguire

Lawrence Tibbett sang and Evelyn Tyner played the piano at the Thrift Shop tea yesterday. Admission was cash in any amount or a gift, both to be distributed among six charitable organizations which are aided by the Thrift Shop.

The audience included many a top feminine name in Washington. Mrs. Truman was there in a gray tailored suit and navy blue sailor, and her daughter, Margaret, wore a two-piece wool suit with beige top and black full skirt. Her becoming hat was light straw beret tied with huge green velvet bow.

After the concert, Miss Tyner and Mr. Tibbett were taken upstairs to the library of Anderson House where tea was served. Mrs. William Fulbright escorted the First Lady, explaining she had been told to put Mrs. Truman on the elevator. Mrs. Truman drew herself up and smilingly asked, "What's wrong with the stairs?" And they ascended on foot.

Anderson House made a pleasant setting for the popular tea which is given annually at this time. The black marble floors are highly polished, each piece of furniture is a museum piece and on the walls hang colorful silk tapestries.

The group that gathered for tea in the library included Mrs. Woodrow Wilson, Mrs. Julius Krug, Mrs. Fred Vinson, Mrs. Thomas Clark, Mme. Koo, Mrs. Clinton Anderson and Miss Meredith Howard.

The president of the Junior League, Mrs. Herbert Fales, was in the audience at the concert, and Mrs. William Sturtevant and Mrs. Nathan Scott.

'No, It Isn't Love'

Gallant Musician Pays Margaret a Compliment

By Marie McNair

"YOU'RE Prettier every time I see you," said Meyer Davis, who plays at White House dances, to Margaret Truman, as she flitted by at the Playhouse in a pale yellow dress, her arm full of red roses.

"It must be love," Meyer insisted. "No," Margaret answered with a pretty smile, "I've had enough of that."

Which may mean everything or nothing. But "they" say it's not Marvin Coles, or Frank Handy, or any of the other young men whose names have been linked with hers. The inside track to the White House daughter's heart is said to be held by the son of Thomas J. Watson, president of International Business Machines, Inc.

LOOKS like another wedding coming up in Mrs. Alf Heiberg's family. Last week it was her brother, Jimmie Cromwell, who took pretty Mrs. Maxine MacFetridge as his bride. Now plans are under way for the wedding of Louise Heiberg's son, Walter Brooks, and Mrs. Helen Engel, whose divorce from Frederick Engel becomes final in the Virgin Islands on May 14. Barring any slips, the two will become Mr. and Mrs. on May 15 in New York. In fact Mrs. Engel has bought a yacht for the honeymoon which they'll spend cruising around various smart resorts this summer.

LAWRENCE TIBBETT, whose voice is known to hundreds of thousands of opera lovers and radio fans, had a reunion with an old friend at Mrs. George Mesta's reception Tuesday evening for opera star Jarmila Novotna.

She was Mme. Vladmir Rybar who was trilling her "ahs" under the same maestro with Larry Tibbett some years ago in New York.

The two were reminiscing about many things when Elvida Rybar asked, "Do you remember calling me up from the White House at a strange hour in the night to say, 'I'm sleeping in Abraham Lincoln's bed'?"

"Yes, and that proved to be an expensive night," recalled the Metropolitan baritone. "After a sleep in that commodious bed, I had to have two made just like it, one for my town house, one for the country."

NOW that a final shake-down on figures has been reached, the National Symphony Orchestra sustaining fund finds itself several thousand dollars richer from the benefit performance of "The Search" at the Playhouse Tuesday evening. However, the orchestra association reports, that it still hasn't reached its goal of $165,000, and that contributions will be gratefully accepted.

The Etiquette Of Graduation

Please tell me about graduation invitations. Are they sent to close friends as well as relatives? My two sons are graduating in June and they have made many friends at a distance, that will be even more interested than many relatives are. Also, would it be correct to inclose both cards in the same invitation since they would go to the same people any way? One son is in the service, therefore his graduation has been delayed. L. B. H.

Invitations are very properly sent to close friends as well as relatives. The cards for both boys may be inclosed.

We are a young couple who are planning to join a small university study tour in a seven-week visit of England, with a short two-week visit in Europe this summer. All our reservations have been made for us, but since this is our first visit abroad, we would like your help in planning our wardrobe. We will travel by ship to and from England, but will fly from London to Paris and return. I plan to include soap, instant coffee and a travel iron in our luggage. C. A. B.

The summers in England are much cooler with more rain than those in Virginia and so, to be prepared you should both take woolen suits, sweaters and complete rain gear. Seasoned travelers seem to confine their wardrobes to suits with ample blouses and shirts. A topcoat for use on the boat and evenings is necessary. Whether or not you take evening clothes will depend upon the ship on which you are sailing and your accommodations.

As for extras, I am told that towels are still short on trains and in hotels in England and on the Continent. Also, such things as paper products, films, shampoo, soaps, candy bars are not available. Your idea of including soap and instant coffee is a good one for they are also short. The April issue of Holiday magazine has an article on wardrobes for travelling in Europe and would be helpful to you.

Could you tell me how to clean a white ostrich plume on a Knight Templar chapeau? I keep it wrapped in a double white cloth while not in use, but the plume has gotten soiled. C. S. H.

Some time ago, M. S., a reader, sent in directions for washing ostrich feathers which she has used successfully many times. Here they are: "Swish the feather through a suds made with a soapless detergent or soap flakes. (There'll be no soap scum if the former is used.) When clean, rinse by swishing through several clear waters. Now, when clean, lay the feathers flat on several thicknesses of paper kitchen towels to dry. They will appear very much bedraggled and "wet rattish." When dry, and here is the most important part—the feathers are held over steam until the curl and fluff has returned. I find my pressure cooker (with the gauge removed so the steam flows through the vent) is wonderful for providing steam. Also, it is a more or less controlled column of steam so that the fingers don't get burned.

Is there any process I could use to remove a small cigarette burn from a leather top on a light walnut table? The burn is not deep, just discolored. I don't want to try anything that might result in a scar worse than the actual burn. Neither do I want to replace the entire leather top. J. P. S.

It is difficult to remove scorch marks from leather because the heat actually changes the leather. However, you might make it less conspicuous by going over the entire table top with either white vaseline or neatsfoot oil. Rub in all that the leather will absorb, and remove the excess by wiping with a clean, soft cloth. Or, you could go over the table surface with a special leather cleaner and preserver which you will find on sale at leather goods stores. Follow directions which come with the preparation you buy.

I have heard that there is a "sealer" for parkay floors which can be applied so that the floors can be kept in good condition with liquid wax and without the necessity of a waxing machine. Do you know of this sealer, and where it can be obtained? J. H.

A seal is any product which, when applied to the bare floor will fill the fibers of the wood and thus prevent dirt entering. Varnishes, shellac and wax are all types of sealers. Also, there are sealers sold under trade names. All of these materials must be applied to the bare wood after all finish has been removed.

I should appreciate any suggestions you might have about getting rid of beetles in our apartment. They are dark brown, hard-shelled, have long antennae, and range in size from three fourths to 1½ inches. During the very cold months we seldom saw them. Now we find them in every room, including the linen closet, on the floor of which are stored cleaning necessities, paper towels, shelf paper, etc. DDT spray has not been effective. Occasionally we see them on the stairs in the apartment hall. R. D. S.

Without seeing them, it's difficult positively to identify the insects you describe and so give suggestions as to how to rid your apartment of them. If you will kill a few, wrap them in tissue paper and mail to C. F. W. Musebeck, Insect Identification, 3130 South Building, United States Department of Agriculture, he will identify them for you and recommend a method for eradicating them. Of course, in an apartment building such eradication would have to be done on an entire building basis to be effective.

Could you tell me how to clean a white ostrich plume on a Knight Templar chapeau? I keep it wrapped in a double white cloth while not in use, but the plume has gotten soiled. C. S. H.

Make Slimming a Habit

By Ida Jean Kain

"There's no use in my dieting off 10 pounds or 20—I just gain them right back again the minute I stop!" a friend remarked cheerfully, the while popping in peanuts at a fast clip. Her actions backed up her words, for the calories from a half peanut supply the extra fuel needed to talk about a good reducing system for a full hour.

Gaining weight on the rebound is largely habit. The diet is over! Back to overeating . . . But why not acquire slim habits and be on a one-way street to normal weight? We invariably think of habit as bad. Habits can be good.

For example—eating between meals is not hunger, it's habit. Why not form the habit of never eating between meals! It saves a heap of calories. The way to fix it is by eating three meals a day. An adequate breakfast does away with the temptation to have a snack at 11:00. A balanced lunch takes away the craving for 500 calories in sweets in the middle of the afternoon. And, having had two good meals, you will not feel impelled to overeat at dinner.

Three moderate meals a day furnish calories for fuel in accordance with the day's energy needs, and by that plan the fuel is burned for energy—not stored as fat. Remember, nature uses calories in accordance with our immediate needs. Three moderate meals a day are less fattening than an enormous dinner eaten at the end of the day's activities. Regular meals furnish better nutrition than between-meal calories.

Mary Haworth's Mail

Relapsing Into Riotous Habits, Man Spent Wife's Savings a Year Ago; Now He Resents Her Refusal to Resume a Joint Bank Account

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: Three years ago I married Sara, a fine intelligent beautiful girl, who comes of a very respectable dignified family.

We were getting along fine, working and combining our savings in a joint account when, out of a clear sky in the second year of marriage, I relapsed into my old habits of drinking, gambling, fighting, etc.

I quit my job, spent all our savings, mistreated Sara and played hell generally. She was terribly distressed but continued working, saving every dollar she could, but in an account of her own.

After I returned to work (on small income) she saved all possible from my allowance to her, in addition to her entire salary, but still refused to resume a joint account. This infuriated me; and I demanded that she quit her job, stay home and do the housework without help from me, if she were going to be so selfish about money.

She told me to never mind helping her with the housework, that she would do it all herself, just as if she hadn't a paid job; and now she does this, including all our laundry, her sewing, etc., but she has become extremely nervous and fearful since our blow-up.

Mother Shares Man's Outrage

NO MAN could want a finer helpmeet than Sara; she is a very sweet, patient girl in general; and I know I have been a terrible heel and made a terrible mess of things—much more than I've explained here,—but isn't she unfair about the money?

My mother thinks so; she tells me I'm a fool to put up with it, and has grown very indignant at Sara because of her attitude; but Sara's comeback is: "I love you dearly, the money is just as much yours as mine, but I'm putting it aside to buy us a home and I can't afford to risk your losing it again. If you'd only wake up, you would see that my policy is for your good."

She cries her heart out about our dissension, and says if only I would cooperate, things could be as they once were; but until I prove myself, she refuses to risk another joint account. How can our marriage be saved? What can I do? Please answer soon. T. J.

Man's Hardly Worth Advice

DEAR T. J.: I've spent hours condensing your letter and reflecting upon its significance, and my final conclusion is that you're hardly worth bothering with. But for Sara's sake, because she loves you, and is a gallant person, here are some plain truths for your guidance. Take 'em or leave 'em.

You are an infantile character with an ugly disposition, the handi work of your mom, I gather, whose stupid sniping at Sara's stout performance in a nasty predicament of your making is downright vicious.

With that kind of mothering, it's small wonder that marriage finds you such a stinker in the role of husband; and if you've got a ghost of a chance of changing for the better, before Sara's love is done to death by your cussedness, it consists in rejecting your mother's benighted championship and poison sympathy and facing the fact that Sara is the only real friend you've got in this world.

Wife's Realism Has Our Backing

IN EVERY WAY, on every hand, Sara gives overwhelming evidence of brainy, heroic, almost tragically absolute devotion to you—tragic in its tax on her, I mean,—but what sticks in your craw and makes you mad is Sara's realism in dealing with your shortcomings.

Actions speak louder than words, and your behavior a year ago shows that you can't be trusted with access to expendable funds; hence her present pecuniary policy in your joint behalf is wholly justified; and if you won't freely admit the constructive necessity of her embattled stand, there is no help for you whatever.

To save the marriage, you must accept the discipline and leadership of Sara's attitude in cooperative spirit, and lighten the load of her anxieties and burdens by affectionately endorsing her protectorate program. M. H.

One on the Aisle—

'Union' Didn't Need Punchline

By Richard L. Coe

NATURALLY, "STATE OF THE UNION," at the Palace, is a good, slick picture. It should be. Consider:

Frank Capra produced and directed it. Anthony Veiller and Myles Connolly, two of the better script writers, adapted it from the Howard Lindsay-Russel Crouse Pulitzer prize-winning play. The cast is headed by Spencer Tracy, Katharine Hepburn, Van Johnson, Angela Lansbury, Adolph Menjou and Lewis Stone.

Everyone has worked together with skilled craftsmanship. The result is topical, clever, provocative, suspenseful. The picture, in short, has everything.

Then why, oh why, oh why, couldn't well enough have been left alone? Why did the finale have to be circused up to bang you over the head? Why, after trying to convince you that the voters of this country have some sense, must it be assumed that as moviegoers they don't, and that in order to make them feel they've got their money's worth they have to be whammed home with a saturnalia hubbub of an ending?

This is the paradox of the movies generally and of Director Capra in particular. The man, who has a positive genius for detailing little things wonderfully, insists on overplaying his hand, preaching and hammering at the very points he already has made sharply, brilliantly.

"STATE OF THE UNION." M-G-M release produced and directed for Liberty Films by Frank Capra. Screen play by Anthony Veiller and Myles Connolly from the play by Howard Lindsay and Russel Crouse. George J. Folsey, director of photography. At the Palace.

And Even Zlotnick

Apart from this, you'll enjoy "State of the Union" for the play. The theater's unique ability to change lines nightly to bring topicality to the story has been ingeniously compensated for by references to President Truman, Stassen, Taft and, wonders of wonders, Washington's own Zlotnick. This simple dash of reality coming from the screen has a lively zing that makes you strain to catch every line.

The story still tells of Grant Matthews, an honest, successful man whose mistress, an energetic newspaper publisher, wants to push him into the White House. His wife, Mary, is made of sharper stuff than he, and in the end she leads him to recognition of the dirt he'll have to wallow in as an elected politician.

The accent, however, is shifted to accommodate the gilt-edged stars. Since Tracy is associated in the public mind as a strong, fine character, you get the feeling he might make a pretty good President—which you never considered very seriously in the play. And though she plays the role brilliantly, indeed gives the finest performance in the splendid cast, Angela Lansbury's publisher should have been a more mature woman—a woman whose know-how plus beauty would have made her hold over Matthews more logical. The script writers have got around this cleverly by incisively revealing her character in the first scene (her father's death), and Miss Lansbury's tight performance overcomes an obstacle that shouldn't have been there in the first place.

Some Ingenious Scenes

In the bits and pieces of its construction, "State of the Union" is at its best. There's a brilliant little scene between Miss Hepburn and Menjou when her incessant chatter keeps him from swallowing a drink. There's Maidel Turner (the only one from the original cast) to limn once more her choice Lulubelle, who has a taste for Sazaracs. Van Johnson will surprise many with his thoroughly able newspaperman; like Miss Lansbury, his youth's against him for complete authenticity, but he sails over the hurdle neatly—even though they've included a low comedy plane trip to add to his business.

Tracy is fine, as you knew he would be, as the honest-speaking man bitten with the presidential bug. Miss Hepburn has a lot to do and does it in style.

For all its overstriving, it is good to see a picture like "State of the Union." It's not saying anything that hasn't already been said—politics is a dirty business, but it's up to all of us to see to it that it isn't. It speaks vigorously, sharply and amusingly. And for all its cooked-up finale, so lacking in integrity, It's a "show" you'll want to see.

THE LITTLE'S "To Live in Peace" died a sudden death yesterday, alas . . . Like "A Double Life," this one must have been "Too Good for the Average Man," as who was it used to sing . . . Today the Little breaks out with a revival of "The Great Waltz," which perennial favorite will hold on until "Holiday Camp" arrives next Wednesday.

SEATS go on sale today at the National for Jane Cowl's "The First Mrs. Fraser," with Reginald Mason topping next week's supporting cast.

"JOHN LOVES MARY," only recently removed from Gotham to Chicago in its original state, will be played Friday night at 8 by the Barter Theater at the George Washington High School in Alexandria . . . The Barter folk have special rights to do this comedy, which hasn't yet been released for general production . . . Sponsoring the Barter this time is Alexandria's Junior Chamber of Commerce . . . Seats now at the Chamber of Commerce Building, the William E. Lee Stationery and the Bookworm, all in Alexandria . . . With the able Barter folk, this should be a worthwhile Friday night.

MARY CARDWELL DAWSON will give one of her praiseworthy song recitals Friday night at 8:30 in the Metropolitan A. M. E. Church, 1518 M st., nw., to aid the National Negro Opera Sustaining Fund . . . At the piano for the versatile soprano will be Homer Wickline.

WHITE HOUSE ASPIRANTS: Katharine Hepburn and Spencer Tracy in the leading roles of Frank Capra's film, "State of the Union." Others in the topical comedy on the Palace screen include Van Johnson, Angela Lansbury and Adolphe Menjou

Maryland PUC Debates Refusal Of School Fare

Baltimore, April 28 (AP).—The Public Service Comission held two meeting with legal advisers today, but came to no decision as to what steps, if any ,it will take on the Capital Transit Co's rejection of a three-cent fare for school children in Maryland.

Another meting will be held Thursday.

Last week, the PSC granted the company's petition for an increase in Montgomery and Prince George's County fares to 5 cents per 1½-mile zone, with the proviso that five zonal tickets be sold to school children for 15 cents.

The company notified the PSC yesterday that it believes the special school rate "unreasonable," and that it will put the new fare schedule into effect May 9.

Virginia Guard Expects Flood Of Recruits

Richmond, Va., April 28 (AP). National Guard unit commanders in Virginia have been advised to look out for a flood of recruits in the next two or three weeks. Reason: Probable passage of a selective service bill.

Adjutant Gen. S. Gardner Waller has written Guard commanders throughout the State concerning the effect of the legislation on Guard enlistments.

He said in general, that any person enrolling in the National Guard up to the time the bill is signed will be exempt from the draft as long as his service is satisfactory.

He said there are less than 2000 vacancies under the present quota of the Virginia National Guard. He added there may be many times that number of young men who may wish to join.

To qualify for exemption under the Andrews Selective Service Bill a man must be a bona fide member of the Guard—physically examined, sworn in and federally recognized—before the bill is signed by the President. The Andrews bill, General Waller said, is expected to pass Congress by May 15.

Fourth of Fruit In Western Maryland Cut

Baltimore, April 28 (AP).—The Weather Bureau said today in its weekly crop summary that western Maryland fruit crops were cut a fourth to a third by the cold snap 10 days ago, and fruit and truck crops were less seriously damaged in other sections of the State.

The report covered the week ended last Friday and gave estimates on the general freze which hit the State on Sunday morning, April 18. Another cold snap last Friday did some damage, mostly on the Eastern Shore Peninsula.

The crop summary by sections:

Garrett, Allegany and Washington Counties: Small grains growing well and mostly good to very good. Plowing for corn under way. Hancock reported an unexpected reduction of 25 to 33 1-3 per cent in the fruit crop. Clear Spring reported no damage and said "Never in years have fruit trees been so heavily laden."

Counties west of Chesapeake Bay: Small grains good to very good, with growth during week retarded by cold weather. Seding of oats continues, with early fields showing fair to good stands. Plowing for corn under way. Truck crops growing well but acreage still small. Asparagus in good supply in southern counties. Frost damage to fruit appears to be light, except heavy in a few local areas of Prince Georges and Anne Arundel Counties. Strawberries blooming and suffered indefinite frost damage. Hay crops and pastures fair to good. Some clover nipped by frost. Tobacco plant beds continue good.

Frederick, Md., April 28 (Spl.). A hearing on a motion to dissolve an injunction against Engene W. Pruitt, Frederick County superintendent of education, was set ahead today until May 6 in Circuit Court by Associate Judge Patrick M. Schnauffer.

Pruitt, in his answer to the petition, said he had the power to suspend Hardy for cause. The instructor was charged with insubordination.

Says Faculty Head

Md. Doctors May Have to Work Harder

Baltimore, April 28 (AP).—Maryland's doctors wound up a three-day business and scientific conference today after getting a new warning that they may have to work harder.

Dr. Charles W. Maxson, president of the Maryland Medical and Chirurgical Faculty, said the alternative is to train more doctors. He reiterated an assertion made in a recent interview that some physicians maye be inclined to take it too easy. He estimated Maryland has 1784 actively practicing doctors. The estimated population of Maryland now is 2,096,900. That is one physician for each 1175 persons.

Mr. Maxson said it is difficult if not impossible to figure out what the per capita potential should be for a doctor. During the war, the advisory board for the armed services calculated the civilian population would be adequately taken care of if there was one doctor for each 1500 persons.

The State-wide figures show Maryland on the credit side of this standard, but Dr. Maxson said there are some other factors to consider:

In the first place, only 1035 of the State's physicians are in general practice. The other 749 are specialists. This leaves only one general practitioner for each 2025 persons.

Besides that, 189 of the general practice men are over 65 years old—perhaps beyond their prime.

Virginia Group Approves U. S. Aid to Education

Roanoke, Va., April 28 (AP).—The division school superintendents of Virginia, during a conference session which ended here today, resolved "to approve and indorse unanimously Federal-aid-to education without Federal control."

Incorporated in the resolution was a request to Virginia members of the Houseof Representatives "to support the legislation authorizing the appropriation of 300 million dollars annually in a form similar to the bill, S-472, passed by the Senate."

Orville W. Wake, State director of elementary education, in an address this morning urged the superintendents to realize when planning a school program that each child is a unique being, and declared, "the weakness of totalitarianism is the weakness of thinking everyone is just alike, the weakness of being average.'

Ballistics Used In Double Death Investigation

Danville, Va., April 28 (AP).—State police turned to ballistics experts today in their investigation of the deaths of a couple whose bodies were found in a trailer near here last Sunday.

FBI ballistics experts in Washington are to examine a pistol recovered by police from a pawnshop and two spent cartridges found in the trailer.

Meanwhile, State police said Thomas Jefferson Black, 33, has been arrested and formally charged with the murders of William Osterberg and his wife, Ruth Osterberg.

Archer said Black had admitted he went to the Osterberg's trailer last week, opened the door, found the man and woman dead, picked up a pistol on a table and took it to a pawnshop. Black told police he received $11 from the pawnshop for the pistol.

Doctor Won't Fight Income Tax Charge

Richmond, Va., April 28 (AP).—Dr. Guy Ross Harrison, 57, of Windsor Farms, pleaded nolo contendere in Federal District Court today to four counts charging him with income tax evasions totaling more than $6000 from 1942 through 1945.

Judge Sterling Hutcheson accepted the plea after a restatement of his position that such a pleading is equal to a plea of guilty to criminal liability "on which a prison sentence may be imposed."

The defendant, widely known dental surgeon and member of the State Board of Health, was indicted early this month on a charge of concealing more than $21,000 in income to evade taxes amounting to $6199.87.

Sentencing was set for May 27.

Also arraigned today was Robert Lee Hicks, local attorney, who pleaded not guilty t oa charge that he attempted last April to improperly influence a juror in the trial of Hugh N. Rakes and others in the Fredericksburg bank case. He demanded a trial by jury.

Judge Hutcheson said he would set a date for the trial later after Attorney George R. Humrickhouse estimated the trial would not last longer than one day.

Dr. Julian C. Major of Alexandria, pleaded nolo contendere to charges of concealing nearly $17,000 of his income in 1942, 1943 and 1944 in order to evade payment of $4018.20 in taxes. Judge Hutcheson set May 27 for disposition of the case.

The "Sunshine" Came Down by the Bucketful

Tuesday morning, the weather forecast was "sunny this afternoon, with a high of about 80."

Tuesday afternoon, in the vicinity of the third tee at Kenwood, I discovered that the weatherman was all wet. And so was I.

When that boy kicks one, he goes all out.

Incidentally, my visit to Kenwood was prompted by curiosity. I wanted to find out what kind of golf game Jerry Strong plays.

All I could learn after the rain started was that Jerry is too stubborn to knock when he gets down to 10. He plays for gin.

SUGGESTION

"Why," asks Lucille Barrett of Quantico, Va., "don't you beat Shirley Povich to the punch and christen our 1948 Nats 'The Whiz Kids'?"

Okay, Lucille, and keep your fingers crossed that they don't wind up as the "Fizz Kids."

Dear Bill:

My head aches, just to think about poor Ozark Ike diving into a concrete wall, head first.

Dear Tony:

You'd probably get hurt. But I wouldn't. Nobody has a harder head than a radio commentator. Not even John L. Lewis, boss of the "fine" workers union.

Herb has agreed to be on my program again some day, "provided a crowd of people write in and request it. And for our purposes we can borrow the definition used in riot acts, and by honeymooners, and agree that 'three's a crowd'."

The two best letters will win two more autographed originals of Herblock cartoons.

VAGRANT THOUGHT

J. H. Gavin amuses himself while riding streetcars by figuring out such things as "How many different bridge hands can be dealt with 52 cards?"

His answer is: exactly 635,013,559,600—and if you don't believe it, buy a Sunday pass and figure it out for yourself.

Take along a deck of cards, and make up a new hand during each second of your ride. You'll be on the streetcar for approximately 20,000 years.

By the time you get off, your new auto will be ready for delivery, and you won't have to ride streetcars any more.

NEW YORK.—Benny Goodman has no diversions. He devotes all his time to music. Mrs. Goodman suggested that he adopt a hobby, and cited the case of Frank Loesser, who relaxes from his song-writing by making furniture. Goodman phoned Loesser, said he was interested in his hobby and asked for a demonstration. Goodman entered the workshop and watched him haul 20-ft. planks, work the lathe and the handsaw . . . Then the songwriter rested, and asked Goodman: "Well, how's this for a hobby?" . . . The bandleader stared through his owlish glasses and finally broke his silence: "Why don't you make an oboe?"

Pat O'Brien's daughter, Mavourneen, has a gold pencil with an unusual inscription. It was a gift from Toots Shor, the restaurateur, who told the jeweler: "I want it engraved 'To Mavourneen.'" The jeweler asked: "How do you spell 'Mavourneen?'" Shor quickly settled: "Just make it 'To Moe.'"

The Russians in Berlin now claim exclusive garage and repair rights to all cars which break down on the International highway in the Soviet zone. Some GI's therefore have put up signs reading "This way to the Smiling Georgian." . . . The No. 1 hit sing in Greece is "My Husband Is a Very Popular Man." It's a line from the book, "It's Greek to Me," by W. S. Ethridge of Louisville, Ky. Joe E. Lewis will feature an American version of the song in his night club routine.

Fletcher's Realty Deals Probed

By Drew Pearson

It looks as if fate was finally catching up with the real estate lobby. One of its most active spokesmen has been Congressman Charles Fletcher, San Diego Republican, who, though a freshman, was strategically placed on the House Banking and Currency Committee by the lobby's master wire-puller, Morton Bodfish.

Fletcher

Bodfish has now been indicted by the Justice Department and Fletcher is now under investigation by the Home Loan Bank Board for some interesting operations in San Diego.

The board has sent its ace investigator, A. C. Newell, to California to probe the shaky finances of the Federal Savings and Loan Association which Fletcher heads. Thanks to the Congressman and his father, the association has got in up to its neck in a real estate deal which may lose a lot of other people's money.

Fletcher founded the Federal Savings and Loan Association of San Diego and is still its president. Furthermore, he draws a salary of $10,000, even while he is supposed to be devoting his full time to Congress.

Of course, as a Congressman, Fletcher introduced the bill to abolish rent control, has voted consistently against housing reforms and is a member of the joint committee on housing where he has done his best to sabotage the Taft-Ellender-Wagner housing bill. So, all in all, he hasn't done so badly by the housing lobby.

'Fletcher Park'

But in San Diego Fletcher hasn't done so well by the people who invested in his Federal Savings and Loan Association. First, Fletcher's father sold a tract of land to a San Diego real estate operator named Larry H. Imig, for around $30,000. Then young Fletcher turned around and loaned Imig the money which he, Imig, paid Fletcher's father for the land.

Following this, Imig erected a housing development which he named "Fletcher Park" in honor of the two gentlemen who sold him the land and loaned him other people's money to pay for it. Then Imig built another development which he named for himself "Imig Park," plus a swank hotel with swimming pool and night club which he named "Imig Park Manor."

Meanwhile, Imig kept borrowing money from Fletcher's Federal Savings and Loan Association until his debt now runs to around $1,250,000—or about one-half the total assets of the association.

If this were Fletcher's money, it would be one thing. But what worries the Home Loan Bank board in Washington is that the United States Government has insured the San Diego Federal Savings and Loan Association and Uncle Sam may have to bail Fletcher out. That's why Investigator Newell was sent to California.

Congressman Fletcher started in the savings and loan business back in 1934 on only $9500. He hit it just at the right time, shortly before the war boom. By the peak of the boom his association's total capital was swollen to nearly three million dollars—of which about half is tied up with one real estate speculator.

Meanwhile, Congressman Fletcher blithely continues to vote against public housing. Obviously, if he can lend money to private speculators with a Government guarantee to bail him out, he isn't terribly interested in the low-cost public housing provided for in the Taft-Ellender-Wagner bill.

Backstage in Italy

Now that the Italian elections are over, some of the backstage developments can be told.

One factor which influenced Italian votes was the State Department's offer to return Trieste to Italy—an offer which the Russians eventually turned down.

What wasn't known was that Tito had been planning to make exactly the same offer himself—on behalf of Russia. But United States intelligence services picked up this fact, and we beat Tito to it. This was some of the fastest footwork the State Department has put across in some time.

Another factor was Ambassador Dunn's insistence that the American fleet get out of Italian waters. Some of the military men around the White House didn't like this advice, thought the fleet should remain. But Dunn argued that its presence gave political ammunition to the Communists. He was right. The fleet was withdrawn, and the Commies had to pipe down.

One thing which nearly upset the applecart was the amendment by Congressman O'Konski of Wisconsin making Marshall Plan money available to Spain. Until this was reversed in the Senate, it had a bad backfire in Italy.

Note 1—When this writer was in Italy last winter, he traveled with Ambassador Dunn and Vice Premier Pacciardi to Naples to welcome the Friend Ship. Perhaps these were the two most incongruous people in Italy to be thrown together; for, during the Spanish Civil War, Dunn was lined up on the side of Franco, while Col. Pacciardi commanded the Italian anti-Fascist troops in Spain fighting against Franco. Both, however, have now been working together in the belief that extremists of either the right or left are enemies of Italian democracy.

Note 2—President Truman has in mind a promotion for Ambassador Dunn. While he deserves one, his services are too important in Italy.

Merry-Go-Round

Some fast footwork is going on inside the State Department regarding the Marshall Plan. The plan has quietly eliminated 600 million dollars worth of machinery to Europe. Instead, 600 million dollars of food and grains have been added. What Europe needs most is machinery to build up its own industry . . . New general counsel of the CIO is able Arthur Goldberg . . . The White House is unhappy over the public-relations setup of the Democratic National Committee, may clean out most of party headquarters . . . However, it's hard to do a good public-relations job when there's not too much to publicize.
